Patrol, Defense Counsel Clash In Manslaughter Hearing

LISBON, Oct. 27.—James Pritchard of Pittsburgh, indicted on a second degree manslaughter charge in connection with the traffic death of Maurice Sorg, also of Pittsburgh, last July, went on the stand in his own defense today after Judge W. F. Lones overruled a motion by defense counsel for a directed verdict of acquittal.

Atty. Lodner Caplan of Salem claimed that the evidence submitted did not support charges of driving while intoxicated and driving on the wrong side of the road.

Clashes between defense counsel and State Highway Patrolman D. H. Cole marked the hearing yesterday afternoon.

The officer, called to the stand to testify regarding his investigation of the accident, said Pritchard, at the time, was under the influence of alcohol. Defense counsel took exception to the charge, claiming that no tests had been made for alcoholism. Patrolman Cole said that police who come in daily contact with persons in such a condition are well qualified to judge them.

AUTO AND TRUCK CRASH FAIRWAY

Collide at Casa Loma, Then Overtake On Golf Course

Five Lisbon residents, riding in one car, miraculously escaped injury at 11:45 p. m. Thursday when their machine and a truck-trailer overturned, side by side, on the fairway of the Casa Loma golf course along Route 14, near Unity.

McDevitt, 25, of Lisbon, driver of the car, was arrested by the state patrol on a charge of reckless driving. He will be given a hearing at Lisbon sometime today.

According to the patrol, McDevitt passed the truck, driven by Leo Johnson, 29, of Akron, and then decided suddenly to stop at the Casa Loma road house. The truck hit the car, and then both vehicles tore through a clump of pine trees and turned over on the fairway.

Climbing out of the Lisbon car without a scratch were Edna Shadicker, Sam Campanello, Victoria Yennit and Caroline Daugherty.

POPE ASSAILS DENIAL OF GOD AS WAR'S CAUSE

Encyclical Peace Plea Criticizes Supreme Dictatorships

SEES GOD ALONE AS FINAL POWER

Calls for Peace Treaties Animated by Justice And Equity

(By Associated Press) CASTEL GANDILFO, Oct. 27.—Pope Pius XII, in the first encyclical of his reign, today blamed "the denial of God" for leading the world to war, and pleaded for peace.

The pope appealed for peace treaties at the end of this war which would avoid the "sacrifices and sufferings" which failed to bring lasting peace in the past. The war, he said, would fail to impose a decisive change in conditions—unless followed by treaties of peace "animated by justice and equity toward all."

Warns of Settlements He warned "there is danger lest settlements be born in such conditions" as "sacrifices and sufferings."

At the same time, he said, respect for treaties was indispensable to peace.

The pontiff criticized dictatorships which assume "absolute autonomy, which belongs exclusively to the supreme maker."

"As we write these lines," the pope said, "the terrible news comes to us that the dread of a limited cash and carry system of commerce with belligerents."

The repeal vote, reached on the 20th day of the senate's history-making neutrality debate, came on a proposal by Senator Nye (D-ND) to discard the administration measure and substitute a bill, similar to that of the administration, except that it would maintain the existing ban on arms sales.

Re-named secretary and Glenn Lewton of Lisbon treasurer.

Three new trustees elected include Dr. Guy E. Byers of Salem, Atty. Crawford and Mrs. W. T. Wilson of Lisbon. Other trustees are Mrs. Arthur S. Brian of Salem, Dr. Paul Beaver of Letonia and Mrs. Jennie Calhoun of Wellsville.

Charles G. Greig of the Ohio Public Health association gave a short talk in which he commended the activities of the county organization.

Principal speaker was Dr. Ruth Wilson, head of the Beaver county (Pa.) tuberculosis sanatorium who told of the accomplishments of that institution which is now in its 17th year. During that time, she said, a total of 1,800 patients have been cured.

County Pay $35,000 The sanatorium operates at a cost of $45,000 annually, an average of $10,000 of which is paid by patients. This leaves $35,000, which she pointed out, is about what Columbiana county pays to the state for the care of "T. B." patients.

The annual reports of Executive Secretary Delmar Serafy and Treasurer Lewton showed $3,768.33 taken in through the sale of Christmas seals last year. A 1938 balance of $34,771 and an X-ray refund of $39.50 gave a total receipts balance of $41,515.4.

Expenditures, totaling $3,361.61, included: Clinics, $827; school health program, $102.83; general health education, $709.53; supplies, $367.32; administration, $601.26; assistance to state and national organizations, $753.67. The balance now on hand amounts to $789.93.

Scope Of Red Cross Work Takes In Wide Territory

Educational Program, In Varied Fields, Is Important Part of Organization's Activities

Activities of the Salem chapter of the Red Cross, which opens its annual Red Cross campaign Nov. 11, are not confined solely to providing relief hospital care and other forms of assistance to needy individuals and families.

The Salem chapter, among other things, sponsors an educational program, including classes in home hygiene, first aid and life saving and swimming instruction.

The home hygiene classes, taught by the local Red Cross nurse, have been offered in Salem for several years in class rooms equipped by the Red Cross. Persons satisfactorily completing the course are given certificates by the national Red Cross.

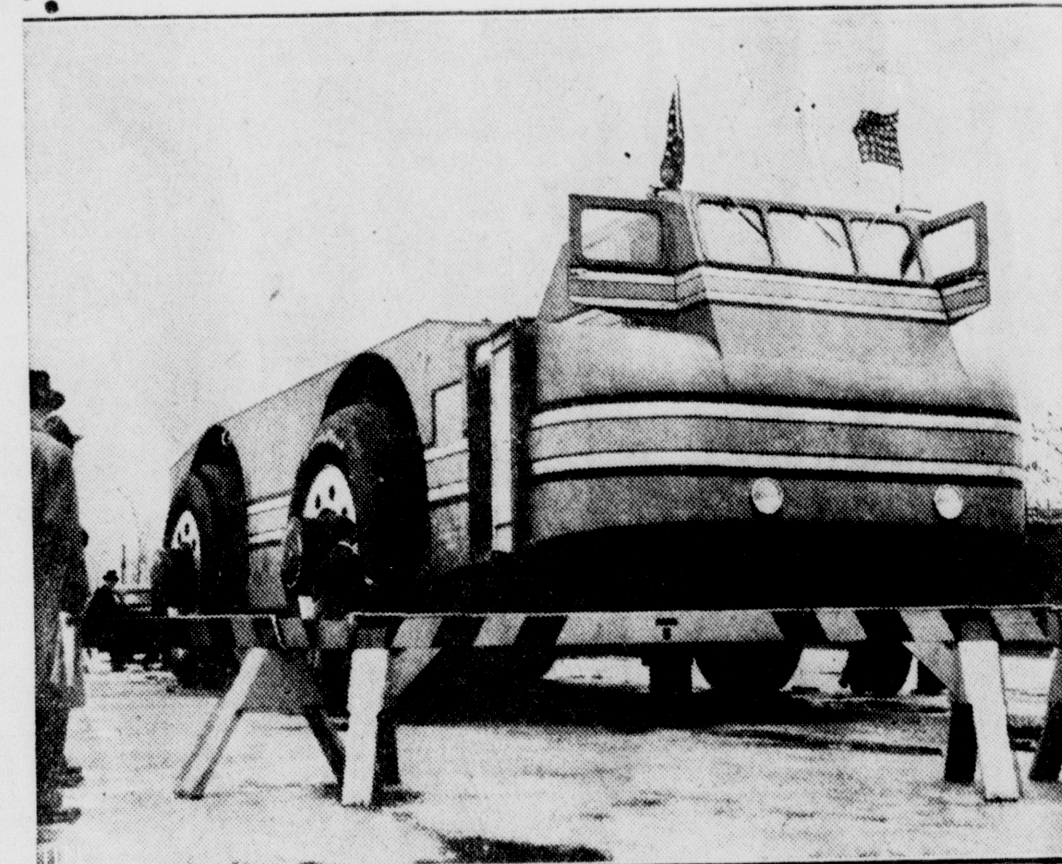

Principles of personal hygiene and planning of a healthful home are taught. Instruction is given in the method of handling, bathing and feeding babies and small children; what to do to make an ill member of a family comfortable and how to give a bed bath and change the linen with the patient in bed.

The hygiene course stresses ways of promoting and protecting community health as well as the principles of first aid and how to care for a sick or injured person until a doctor arrives.

Twenty-two certificates have been issued this year by the national Red Cross to persons who have passed the course. In the past four years, 80 Salem women have completed the course.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The senate voted this afternoon to repeal the embargo against sale of arms to Europe's warring nations.

The vote was 67 for repeal to 22 against.

The action cleared the way for passage of the administration neutrality bill, which in addition to ending the embargo, also would set up a limited cash and carry system of commerce with belligerents.

SNOW CRUISER'S PATH NOT ROSY

Traffic, Bridges, Other Obstacles Handicap Byrd Ship

WARSAW, Ind., Oct. 27.—An enormous snow cruiser built to travel Antarctic wastes spent last night in this northern Indiana lake-resort city after a troubled day's journey on Hoosier highways.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, scientific director of the Armour Institute of Technology research foundation, who designed the 75,000-pound Diesel-powered vehicle in Chicago for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's south polar expedition set out yesterday to take it to Boston for shipment. They had planned to make Fort Wayne, 45 miles east of here, by night.

Runs into Obstacles But the cruiser—55 feet long, 20 feet wide and 12 feet high—ran into obstacles. State police escorts had to be changed. Thousands of spectators lined the way. A half-mile traffic jam brought up the rear. Near Plymouth, the crew gave a 20-minute radio interview.

And three miles west of Warsaw a bridge over the Tippecanoe river—on a route carefully mapped out by state highway department engineers—proved too narrow.

There the cruiser stayed for more than three hours while its crew took off hub caps to get it across the river. Heavy rain hampered the work.

Special Routes Selected Officials of Armour Institute of Technology's research foundation, which wrote specifications for the big craft, explained that special routes had been selected by highway departments in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Massachusetts in hopes that the big cruiser would not get stuck in some low viaduct.

Police escorts were to be provided all along the route. On two-lane roads oncoming automobiles had to pull off the highway to allow the cruiser, 20 feet wide, 55 feet long and 15 feet high, to pass. Two cars accompanied the cruiser to assist motorists whose autos disliked ditch running.

CITY OF FLINT IS HEADED TO GERMAN PORT

Vessel, Seized As Contraband, Released by Soviet Russia

HAMBURG PRIZE COURT WAITING

U. S. Ambassador Finally Wins Interview In Moscow

(By Associated Press) BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Official advances received here tonight said the United States steamer City of Flint was being sailed from Murmansk to Germany under command of a prize crew from the German pocket battleship Deutschland.

The freighter was reported somewhere along the Norwegian coast, heading slowly into the British blockade area.

The vessel, seized as a contraband ship and taken to the Russian port of Murmansk, above the Arctic circle, was released last night by Soviet Russia.

Loss No Time

Advices reaching Berlin said the Germans lost no time in lifting anchor for Hamburg where a prize court was planned to decide on the fate of the ship and her cargo.

Germany's seizure of the steamer assumed growing importance today as a possible precedent in future Nazi policies of sea warfare against Great Britain.

Germans generally contended that the sea patrol which boarded the American freighter was within its rights and it was predicted in informed quarters that the vessel and her cargo soon would be in a German harbor as a prize of war.

German submarine commanders said they would have no trouble conveying her from Murmansk down the North sea and through the British blockade to Hamburg.

Wins Interview MOSCOW, Oct. 27.—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt finally succeeded late today in gaining an interview with a Russian foreign office official in his quest for information on the American vessel City of Flint, after earlier attempts to get an appointment had failed.

CRASH FAIRWAY

Collide at Casa Loma, Then Overturn On Golf Course

Five Lisbon residents, riding in one car, miraculously escaped injury at 11:45 p. m. Thursday when their machine and a truck-trailer overturned, side by side, on the fairway of the Casa Loma golf course along Route 14, near Unity.

Paul McDevitt, 25, of Lisbon, driver of the car, was arrested by the state patrol on a charge of reckless driving. He will be given a hearing at Lisbon sometime today.

According to the patrol, McDevitt passed the truck, driven by Leo Johnson, 29, of Akron, and then decided suddenly to stop at the Casa Loma road house. The truck hit the car, and then both vehicles tore through a clump of pine trees and turned over on the fairway.

Climbing out of the Lisbon car without a scratch were Edna Shadiker, Sam Campanello, Victoria Yonut and Caroline Daugherty.

In an accident on Route 46, one and one-half miles north of Canfield at 7:30 a. m. today, cars driven by John H. Keyser, 32, of R. D. 2, Leontonia, and Cornell Kmentz, 54, of R. D. 1, Canfield, were involved but no one was injured, the patrol reported.

Get New Style Hats

A new type of headress for members of the Ohio state highway patrol has been received by several members of the Salem patrol sub-station.

The hats, patterned after the "campaign" hats worn in the U. S. Army and similar also to those worn by Canada's Royal Mounted police, are replacing the visored caps which the patrolmen will use only when riding their motorcycles.

Not all state patrolmen have their new hats yet. First to receive them here are Corp. W. E. Arey and Patrolman P. D. Barnes.

Encyclical Peace Plea Criticizes Supreme Dictatorships

SEES GOD ALONE
AS FINAL POWER

Calls for Peace Treaties Animated by Justice And Equity

(By Associated Press)
CASTEL GANDILFO, Oct. 27.—Pope Pius XII, in the first encyclical of his reign, today blamed "the denial of God" for leading the world to war, and pleaded for peace.

The pope appealed for peace treaties at the end of this war which would avoid the "sacrifices and sufferings" which failed to bring lasting peace in the past. The war, he said, would fail to impose a decisive change in conditions—unless followed by treaties of peace "animated by justice and equity toward all."

Warnings of Settlements

He warned "there is danger lest settlements be born in such conditions" as "sacrifices and sufferings."

At the same time, he said, respect for treaties was indispensable to peace.

The pontiff criticized dictatorships which assume "absolute autonomy, which belongs exclusively to the supreme maker."

"As we write these lines," the pope said, "the terrible news comes to us that the dread tempest of war is already raging in spite of all our efforts to avert it."

He said "new errors" added to the "doctrinal aberrations of the past" which have pushed these "to extremes which lead inevitably to a drift toward chaos."

"Once the authority of God and the sway of his law are denied in this way," Pope Pius declared in his letter of more than 11,000 words to all Catholic bishops, "civil authority as an inevitable result tends to attribute to itself that absolute autonomy which belongs exclusively to the Supreme Maker."

Educational Program, In Varied Fields, Is Important Part of Organization's Activities

Activities of the Salem chapter of the Red Cross, which opens its annual Red Cross campaign Nov. 11, are not confined solely to providing relief hospital care and other forms of assistance to needy individuals and families.

The Salem chapter, among other things, sponsors an educational program, including classes in home hygiene, first aid and life saving and swimming instruction. The home hygiene classes, taught by the local Red Cross nurse, have been offered in Salem for several years in class rooms equipped by the Red Cross. Persons satisfactorily completing the course are given certificates by the national Red Cross.

County Group, At Annual Meeting, Hears Talk By Health Aids

LISBON, Oct. 27.—Dr. Chester W. DeWalt of Columbiana was elected president of the Columbiana County Health league to succeed Atty. S. A. Crawford of East Liverpool at the annual meeting here last night.

Rev. N. B. Martin of East Palestine was elected first vice president and Mrs. M. D. McCutcheon of Lisbon second vice president. Atty. George L. Lafferty of Lisbon was re-named secretary and Glenn Lewton of Lisbon treasurer.

New Trustees Named

Three new trustees elected include Dr. Guy E. Byers of Salem, Atty. Crawford and Mrs. W. T. Wilson of Lisbon. Other trustees are Mrs. Arthur S. Brown of Salem, Dr. Paul Beaver of Leontonia and Mrs. Jennie Calhoun of Wellsville.

Charles G. Greig of the Ohio Public Health association gave a short talk in which he commended the activities of the county organization.

Principal speaker was Dr. Ruth Wilson, head of the Beaver county (Pa.) tuberculosis sanatorium who told of the accomplishments of that institution which is now in its 17th year. During that time, she said, a total of 1,800 patients have been cured.

County Pay $35,000

The sanatorium operates at a cost of $45,000 annually, an average of $10,000 of which is paid by patients. This leaves $35,000, which she pointed out, is about what Columbiana county pays to the state for the care of "T. B." patients.

The annual reports of Executive Secretary Delmar Serray and Treasurer Lewton showed $3,768.33 taken in through the sale of Christmas seals last year. A 1938 balance of $343.71 and an X-ray refund of $39.50 gave a total receipts balance of $4,151.54.

Expenditures, totaling $3,361.61, included: Clinics, $827; school health program, $102.83; general health education, $709.53; supplies, $367.32; administration, $601.26; assistance to state and national organizations, $753.67. The balance now on hand amounts to $789.93.

Late Bulletins

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The senate voted this afternoon to repeal the embargo against sale of arms to Europe's warring nations.

The vote was 67 for repeal to 22 against.

The action cleared the way for passage of the administration neutrality bill, which in addition to ending the embargo, also would set up a limited cash and carry system of commerce with belligerents.

The repeal vote, reached on the 20th day of the senate's history-making neutrality debate, came on a proposal by Senator Nye (D-ND) to discard the administration measure and substitute a bill, similar to that of the administration, except that it would maintain the existing ban on arms sales.

Tanks and Rapid-Fire Artillery Line Up On Siegfried Line

(By Associated Press)
PARIS, Oct. 27.—The Germans have moved tanks and rapid-fire artillery into attacking positions on the Siegfried line, French military observers reported today.

French patrol reports indicated that the Germans facing the Maginot fortifications were in "jumpoff" spots all along the northern flank, but an intense cold snap proved an ally of the French, who said they were all set for a German offensive.

The council of ministers, meeting with President Albert Lebrun in Elysee palace, approved ratification of the French-Turkish mutual assistance accord signed Oct. 19 in Ankara.

The cold and flooded regions in some parts of the front caused French observers to doubt that a German drive would be immediate, but they said they expected it as

HAMBURG PRIZE
COURT WAITING

U. S. Ambassador Finally Wins Interview In Moscow

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Official advice received here tonight said the United States steamer City of Flint was being sailed from Murmansk to Germany under command of a prize crew from the German pocket battleship Deutschland.

The freighter was reported somewhere along the Norwegian coast, heading slowly into the British blockade area.

The vessel, seized as a contraband ship and taken to the Russian port of Murmansk, above the Arctic circle, was released last night by Soviet Russia.

Lose No Time

Advices reaching Berlin said the Germans lost no time in lifting anchor for Hamburg where a prize court was planned to decide on the fate of the ship and her cargo.

Germany's seizure of the steamer assumed growing importance today as a possible precedent in future Nazi policies of sea warfare against Great Britain.

Germans generally contended that the sea patrol which boarded the American freighter was within its rights and it was predicted in informed quarters that the vessel and her cargo soon would be in a German harbor as a prize of war.

German submarine commanders said they would have no trouble conveying her from Murmansk down the North sea and through the British blockade to Hamburg.

Wins Interview

MOSCOW, Oct. 27.—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt finally succeeded late today in gaining an interview with a Russian foreign office official in his quest for information on the American vessel City of Flint, after earlier attempts to get an appointment had failed.

The ambassador went to see Vladimir P. Potemkin, vice minister of foreign affairs, shortly before 6 p. m. (10 a. m. EST). There was no immediate announcement of the result of the interview.

Although Soviet officials had assured Steinhardt they would give him full information concerning the vessel which was taken to the Russian port of Murmansk under command of a German prize crew and later released, he had been unable to learn any more than what was in the Soviet press.

In Shattered Sub

DOVER, England, Oct. 27.—Between 50 and 60 bodies were reported today to have been found by British divers exploring a shattered German submarine washed up yesterday on the Goodwin sands.

The Goodwin sands are more than five miles out from the Kent coast, forming a natural breakwater to the Downs roadstead. Heavy firing was heard off the coast on Wednesday.

One theory was that the submarine was sunk either by depth charges or aerial bombs and drifted aground.

MARGINAL NOTE TO POSTERITY

"England," says German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, "is threatening our existence and our vital rights. Now, whether she wants it or not, she must place at stake her world domination, her empire."

If an equally responsible Britain were to make an equally direct summary of what the war's about, he might say, "Germany is threatening our existence and our vital rights. Now, whether she wants it or not, she must place at stake her ambitions of world domination, her budding empire."

George Bernard Shaw has said approximately that much by admitting that Adolf Hitler could charge with propriety that there can be no peace in the world until British imperialism is abolished—with German imperialism presumably substituted for it. Mr. Shaw, of course, isn't a responsible Briton.

H. V. Kaltenborn, American news commentator, puts it succinctly by saying that if Great Britain and France had thought less about making the world safe for themselves during and after the World war it would be a lot safer for democracy. That's a typical American point of view.

At least it's reasonably plain for posterity that the issue of the war that began in 1939, or never ended after 1918, was reasonably clear at the time. Germany wasn't to be boss and Great Britain said no, it wasn't ready to retire. Everything else was incidental.

WHISTLING FOR THE CROSSING

The Association of American Railroads seems to be in the position of a professional wrestler being warned by the referee not to get so rough with a rough opponent. The department of justice has filed a complaint charging the association with restraint of trade because it has refused to extend cooperation to motor carriers. The government insists on competition—but the right kind.

This is an odd situation, when one of two competing businesses is expected to make things as easy as possible for the other. It speaks for members of the association profess to be puzzled, it will be understandable. As railroads see it, they haven't been over-burdened with acts of kindness by motor carriers.

Recently, their national association has been conducting a campaign to try to get the railroad problem before the people—a problem that has a great deal to do with what railroad men charge is subsidized competition by motor carriers. But it seems the motor carriers must have steered clear, or never were forced close to, the Sherman anti-trust act.

Ultimately, the question of how to maintain competing forms of transportation, both essential, is going to have to be decided more decisively than it has been up to now. Perhaps the justice department's complaint against railroads will lead circuitously to a showdown.

JIGSAW

Tired of trying to fit together the pieces of Europe's jigsaw puzzle? Then turn to Asia for relaxation. Asia plays power politics too.

First effect of the Soviet-Nazi alliance in Japan's "sphere of destiny" was an attempt by Germany to patch up the quarrel between the Japanese and Russians, for the purpose of keeping Japan on its side.

About the same time France turned on the heat to make China knuckle under to Japan. Earlier, the United States had turned on the heat to make Japan respect its rights and U. S. Ambassador Grew had reaffirmed the same demand within the last few days. Great Britain, meanwhile, had been growing unusually amiable toward Japan.

It looked as though this might fit together to make a picture of peace. But latest news from the Asiatic front tells about arrival of a Soviet military mission in Chungking to help Gen. Chiang Kai-shek put up a stiffer fight against Japan. Presumably, it's possible to make sense out of this jumble, but the prospect is about as encouraging as a 5,000-piece jigsaw puzzle with half the pieces missing.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, October 28

MIXED influences, in the terms of astrological science, prevail on this day. There are portents of swift and sudden actions rather ruthless and rash in their precipitance. These may exact regrets and penalties, in which superiors, employers or others in authority may be involved. However, offsetting this adverse prospect, and as a boon to conflicting circumstances, the mind will be found particularly shrewd and capable to cope with difficulties. Sagacity and subtlety may overcome difficulties.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which some sudden and ruthless events may challenge all their native shrewdness, cleverness and subtlety, with which this year finds them generously endowed. Cross purposes with employers, superiors or those in authority may challenge the discreet exercise of deep vision, sagacity and intuitive perception, the misuse of which may precipitate sorrow and defeat.

A child born on this day, while being forceful, passionate and impetuous, with certain doubtful and peculiar traits, may have shrewdness, craft and subtlety to help it "worm out" of self-invited difficulties.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

British Premier Chamberlain has accepted German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop's challenge of war to a finish, and Berlin has indicated that bombs will begin to crash soon.

Well and good, if they like it that way, but neither of these gentlemen has told us what sort of finish to expect, and it's mighty obscure.

However, it wouldn't be rash to make a small bet that the war won't die with its boots on, but that some day it will just turn its face to the wall and pass out because of lack of will to carry on.

One can't escape the haunting belief that the end will come from a crack of public morale somewhere—a breakdown due to want of sufficient inspiration to struggle on indefinitely under the burden of privation and death.

The Allies are using all their wiles to bring this to pass in Germany. And from the Nazi front lines loud-speakers blare out across no-man's land:—"Frenchemen, lay down your arms and shake hands. The Germans don't want to fight!"

The trouble with this unwanted war is that it lacks both oomph and a soul.

It has neither a Paris battling for his Helen of Troy, nor yet a Sir Galahad riding for the Holy Grail.

To date, this scrap hasn't even produced a slogan with half the punch of "we want a touchdown" to justify its existence.

A fellow can fight for a banner-line like "remember the Maine, to hell with Spain!"

But it's hard to get really bloodthirsty over invitations to go out and "Crush Hitlerism" or smash "British imperialism." A man's heart cannot burn for long over such abstractions, especially when they tangle up to mean that the conflict is to settle the question of who is to be big boss of Europe.

I visited all the countries involved in this war within the year. I believe that as a whole their people at this juncture are loyal to their governments and are determined to win.

It has seemed to me, however, that the general public are impelled by a sense of duty rather than by any spiritual or emotional urge. That is to say, enthusiasm is lacking.

The average man over there—from Piccadilly to the wilds of the Balkan mountains, both of which I know—wants to be peaceable and friendly, even as you and I.

You may recall that the first Christmas after the start of the World war the German and Allied soldiers took a recess from slaughter and fraternized. They shook hands and shared their boxes of food from home and even played football on this birthday of the gentle Apostle of Peace.

When the push-chair officials heard about this horrible breach of discipline they burned up the wires to the front. It was made clear to the boys that they were sent out to kill and be killed, and not to make friends with the enemy.

Injection Treatment Used To Subdue Varicose Veins

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

VARICOSE VEINS occur most frequently in the legs. Varicose means swollen, knotted and tortuous. The reason the veins of the legs are affected in this way is easy to understand. The veins return the blood to the heart, after it has been pumped through the arteries and has flowed slowly through the capillaries. There is no pump, no heart behind the stream of blood in the veins; it makes its way from the force of backward pressure back to the right ventricle of the heart. The blood in the veins of the head has no difficulty; it flows to the heart by gravity. So, too, the blood in the veins of the arms and chest. But the veins of the legs encounter a real mechanical difficulty in making their return load; they are continuously trying to push a load of blood upwards against gravity.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Nature has tried to solve this difficulty by providing valves in the leg veins—little cusps spaced at short intervals, which hold the blood and prevent it from flowing backwards. These valves break up the column of blood so that the walls of the veins only have to stand the pressure of a short column of blood.

Valves Give Way The valves are prone to give way, especially in middle age and especially in people whose occupation demands constant standing—police-men, cooks, elevator operators, clerks. When this occurs, varicosity of the veins follows.

It occurs most often in middle age because the veins, like the arteries, become hard and brittle as time advances. Calcified valves burst more readily than elastic ones. Occupation does not necessarily always play a part in the occurrence of varicose veins.

The consequences of varicose veins are often serious. Aside from the unesthetic aspect of a leg covered with varicose veins, it has bad circulation and this bad circulation to the skin may cause ulceration. Prevention should be employed by everyone over the age of 40.

Take the strain off the veins. Lie down and put your legs in the air and give gravity a chance five or six times a day. For the man over 40 the feet on the desk attitude is good hygiene. The abandonment of garters and any constriction of the legs is plainly a logical step.

Modern Treatment Modern treatment has advanced greatly in the cure of varicose veins. Formerly the only alternatives were the wearing of an elastic stocking or surgery. And the surgery was not always successful.

Now the injection method can be used and is successful in the great majority—over 90%—of cases. A solution is injected into the swollen veins. The solution is of a chemical which destroys the lining of the vein and obliterates it as a carrier.

The injection can be given in the doctor's office. It requires only a short time and, if done at the lunch hour, working people can return to their jobs for the afternoon. It causes little pain. Ulcers are easily healed after the varicosities have been obliterated.

Questions And Answers

N. M. J.: "When I boil my vegetables, such as string beans, carrots, spinach, brussels sprouts, etc. I save the excess water as an inter-been meals beverage. Does it have any caloric value? Also how many calories in a pint of buttermilk?"

Answer—The water from your vegetables does not contain enough calories to bother about. It contains certain mineral salts and for that reason is recommended as a health food, but on very vague grounds. One pint of buttermilk contains about 175 calories.

L. E. C.: "Did I understand you to say in one of your articles that eating of yeast over a period of years would prevent the follicles of the hair from losing their color? Can you suggest any diet that might have a beneficial effect on the hair? Are permanent waves injurious to the hair?"

Answer: I believe there is a misunderstanding as I cannot subscribe to the belief that the use of yeast will prevent graying of hair. I know of no special diet that has any direct effect on the hair. So-called permanent waves are produced by wetting the hair with an alkaline solution to soften it and then heating it while on the curlers long enough to produce steam. Since it does not influence the roots, it seems to do no harm. Some kinds of white, over-bleached, stringy or dyed hair do not permanently wave very well. Hair dressers use "constitutional disease" as an excuse to explain their failures. This has no foundation in fact.

E. R. J.: "Is there anything seriously wrong with a person whose lungs have been pronounced healthy but who has to cough or clear his throat at least once about every five minutes?"

Answer: This is a very good question. It shows at least that

"England," says German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, "is threatening our existence and our vital rights. Now, whether she wants it or not, she must place at stake her world domination, her empire."

If an equally responsible Briton were to make an equally direct summary of what the war's about, he might say, "Germany is threatening our existence and our vital rights. Now, whether she wants it or not, she must place at stake her ambitions of world domination, her budding empire."

George Bernard Shaw has said approximately that much by admitting that Adolf Hitler could charge with propriety that there can be no peace in the world until British imperialism is abolished—with German imperialism presumably substituted for it. Mr. Shaw, of course, isn't a responsible Briton.

H. V. Kaltenborn, American news commentator, puts it succinctly by saying that if Great Britain and France had thought less about making the world safe for themselves during and after the World war, it would be a lot safer for democracy. That's a typical American point of view.

At least it's reasonably plain for posterity that the issue of the war that began in 1939, or never ended after 1918, was reasonably clear at the time. Germany wanted to be boss and Great Britain said no, it wasn't ready to retire. Everything else was incidental.

WHISTLING FOR THE CROSSING

The Association of American Railroads seems to be in the position of a professional wrestler being warned by the referee not to get so rough with a rough opponent. The department of justice has filed a complaint charging the association with restraint of trade because it has refused to extend cooperation to motor carriers. The government insists on competition—but the right kind.

This is an odd situation, when one of two competing businesses is expected to make things as easy as possible for the other. If spokesmen for members of the association profess to be puzzled, it will be understandable. As railroads see it, they haven't been over-burdened with acts of kindness by motor carriers.

Recently, their national association has been conducting a campaign to try to get the railroad problem before the people—a problem that has a great deal to do with what railroad men charge is subsidized competition by motor carriers. But it seems the motor carriers must have steered clear, or never were forced close to, the Sherman anti-trust act.

Ultimately, the question of how to maintain competing forms of transportation, both essential, is going to have to be decided more decisively than it has been up to now. Perhaps the justice department's complaint against railroads will lead circuitously to a showdown.

JIGSAW

Tired of trying to fit together the pieces of Europe's jigsaw puzzle? Then turn to Asia for relaxation. Asia plays power politics too.

First effect of the Soviet-Nazi alliance in Japan's "sphere of destiny" was an attempt by Germany to patch up the quarrel between the Japanese and Russians, for the purpose of keeping Japan on its side.

About the same time France turned on the heat to make China knuckle under to Japan. Earlier, the United States had turned on the heat to make Japan respect its rights and U. S. Ambassador Grew has reaffirmed the same demand within the last few days. Great Britain, meanwhile, had been growing unusually amiable toward Japan.

It looked as though this might fit together to make a picture of peace. But latest news from the Asiatic front tells about arrival of a Soviet military mission in Chungking to help Gen. Chiang Kai-shek put up a stiffer fight against Japan. Presumably, it's possible to make sense out of this jumble, but the prospect is about as encouraging as a 5,000-piece jigsaw puzzle with half the pieces missing.

For Saturday, October 28

MIXED influences, in the terms of astrological science, prevail on this day. There are portents of swift and sudden actions rather ruthless and rash in their precipitance. These may exact regrets and penalties, in which superiors, employers or others in authority may be involved. However, offsetting this adverse prospect, and as a boon to conflicting circumstances, the mind will be found particularly shrewd and capable to cope with difficulties. Sagacity and subtlety may overcome difficulties.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which some sudden and ruthless events may challenge all their native shrewdness, cleverness and subtlety, with which this year finds them generously endowed. Cross purposes with employers, superiors or those in authority may challenge the discreet exercise of deep vision, sagacity and intuitive perception, the misuse of which may precipitate sorrow and defeat.

A child born on this day, while being forceful, passionate and impetuous, with certain doubtful and peculiar traits, may have shrewdness, craft and subtlety to help it "worm out" of self-invited difficulties.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

British Premier Chamberlain has accepted German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop's challenge of war to a finish, and Berlin has indicated that bombs will begin to crash soon.

Well and good, if they like it that way, but neither of these gentlemen has told us what sort of finish to expect, and it's mighty obscure.

However, it wouldn't be rash to make a small bet that the war won't die with its boots on, but that some day it will just turn its face to the wall and pass out because of lack of will to carry on.

One can't escape the haunting belief that the end will come from a crack of public morale somewhere—a breakdown due to want of sufficient inspiration to struggle on indefinitely under the burden of privation and death.

The Allies are using all their wiles to bring this to pass in Germany. And from the Nazi front lines loud-speakers blare out across no-man's land:—"Frenchmen, lay down your arms and shake hands. The Germans don't want to fight!"

The trouble with this unwanted war is that it lacks both omph and a soul.

It has neither a Paris battling for his Helen of Troy, nor yet a Sir Galahad riding for the Holy Grail.

To date, this scrap hasn't even produced a slogan with half the punch of "we want a touchdown" to justify its existence.

A fellow can fight for a banner-line like "remember the Maine; to hell with Spain!"

But it's hard to get really bloodthirsty over invitations to go out and "Crush Hitlerism" or smash "British imperialism." A man's heart cannot burn for long over such abstractions, especially when they total up to mean that the conflict is to settle the question of who is to be big boss of Europe.

I visited all the countries involved in this war within the year. I believe that as a whole their people at this juncture are loyal to their governments and are determined to win.

It has seemed to me, however, that the general public are impelled by a sense of duty rather than by any spiritual or emotional urge. That is to say, enthusiasm is lacking.

The average man over there—from Piccadilly to the wilds of the Balkan mountains, both of which I know—wants to be peaceable and friendly, even as you and I.

You may recall that the first Christmas after the start of the World war the German and Allied soldiers took a recess from slaughter and fraternized. They shook hands and shared their boxes of food from home and even played football on this birthday of the gentle Apostle of Peace.

When the plush-chair officials heard about this horrible breach of discipline they burned up the wires to the front. It was made clear to the boys that they were sent out to kill and be killed, and not to make friends with the enemy.

Injection Treatment Used To Subdue Varicose Veins

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
VARICOSE VEINS occur most frequently in the legs. Varicose means swollen, knotted and tortuous. The reason the veins of the legs are affected in this way is easy to understand. The veins return the blood to the heart, after it has been pumped through the arteries and has flowed slowly through the capillaries. There is no pump, no heart behind the stream of blood in the veins; it makes its way from the force of backward pressure back to the right ventricle of the heart. The blood in the veins of the head has no difficulty; it flows to the heart by gravity. So, too, the blood in the veins of the arms and chest. But the veins of the legs encounter a real mechanical difficulty in making their return load; they are continuously trying to push a load of blood upwards against gravity.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Nature has tried to solve this difficulty by providing valves in the leg veins—little cusps spaced at short intervals which hold the blood and prevent it from flowing backwards. These valves break up the column of blood so that the walls of the veins only have to stand the pressure of a short column of blood.

Valves Give Way
The valves are prone to give way, especially in middle age and especially in people whose occupation demands constant standing—police-men, cooks, elevator operators, clerks. When this occurs, varicosity of the veins follows.

It occurs most often in middle age because the veins, like the arteries, become hard and brittle as time advances. Calcified valves burst more readily than elastic ones. Occupation does not necessarily always play a part in the occurrence of varicose veins.

The consequences of varicose veins are often serious. Aside from the unsightly aspect of a leg covered with varicose veins, it has had circulation and this bad circulation to the skin may cause ulceration.

Prevention should be employed by everyone over the age of 40. Take the strain off the veins. Lie down and put your legs in the air and give gravity a chance five or six times a day. For the man over 40 the feet on the desk attitude is good hygiene. The abandonment of garters and any constriction of the legs is plainly a logical step.

Modern Treatment

Modern treatment has advanced greatly in the cure of varicose veins. Formerly the only alternatives were the wearing of an elastic stocking or surgery. And the surgery was not always successful.

Now the injection method can be used and is successful in the great majority—over 90%—of cases. A solution is injected into the swollen veins. The solution is of a chemical which destroys the lining of the vein and obliterates it as a carrier.

The injection can be given in the doctor's office. It requires only a short time and, if done at the lunch hour, working people can return to their jobs for the afternoon. It causes little pain. Ulcers are easily healed after the varicosities have been obliterated.

Questions And Answers

N. M. J.: "When I boil my vegetables, such as string beans, carrots, spinach, brussels sprouts, etc. I save the excess water as an inter-between meals beverage. Does it have any caloric value? Also how many calories in a pint of buttermilk?"

Answer—The water from your vegetables does not contain enough calories to bother about. It contains certain mineral salts and for that reason is recommended as a health food, but on very vague grounds. One pint of buttermilk contains about 175 calories.

L. E. C.: "Did I understand you to say in one of your articles that eating of yeast over a period of years would prevent the follicles of the hair from losing their color? Can you suggest any diet that might have a beneficial effect on the hair? Are permanent waves injurious to the hair?"

Answer: I believe there is a misunderstanding as I cannot subscribe to the belief that the use of yeast will prevent graying of hair. I know of no special diet that has any direct effect on the hair. So-called permanent waves are produced by wetting the hair with an alkaline solution to soften it and then heating it while on the curlers long enough to produce steam. Since it does not influence the roots, it seems to do no harm. Some kinds of white, over-bleached, stringy or dyed hair do not permanently wave very well. Hair dressers use "constitutional disease" as an excuse to explain their failures. This has no foundation in fact.

E. R. J.: "Is there anything seriously wrong with a person whose lungs have been pronounced healthy but who has to cough or clear his throat at least once about every five minutes?"

Answer: This is a very good question. It shows at least that enough intelligence was used to do the primarily important thing which is to have a careful examination of the lungs. The symptoms point definitely, however, to "throat drip"—an infection in the nose that drops a secretion back into the throat. While not very serious in itself, it may lead to chronic bronchitis (bronchiectasis).

Answer—Aspirin relieves certain kinds of pain, reduces fever and causes perspiration. The soft drink is not operative.

CHINESE SEEK COLLEGE HELP

War Materials Embargo Urged in Appeal to Dr. Butler

CHUNGKING—The presidents and chancellors of 16 leading Chinese universities have sent a message to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, urging stronger measures against Japan.

The message appealed for "more effective measures, such as an embargo against the shipment of war materials to Japan, and positive assistance to China in financial and other fields."

A message also was sent to the chancellors of Oxford University.

Dr. Butler was asked to forward copies of his message to the presidents of all American universities and colleges and the chancellor of Oxford University in England.

The message to Dr. Butler pointed out the great admiration and enthusiasm aroused throughout China by President Roosevelt's abrogation of the Japanese-American trade treaty of 1911, which was characterized as a "masterpiece of statesmanship."

"However," the message added, "while the aggressive war being waged by Japan is continuing at this time, the six month period before the actual expiration of the Japanese-American treaty is still too long."

"We earnestly appeal to the enlightened American public opinion to support the President's policy and enable him to take further steps."

"We are horrified to see the present loss of American life and property together with Chinese through the use of destructive agents supplied Japan by America."

"At the same time, it is only through American leadership that the troubled Pacific will begin to regain its calm and the memory of America's aid in our war of independence will be cherished forever by the Chinese people."

The message sent to the chancellors of Oxford University said that the statement made July 31 by Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister, "revived our confidence in the general attitude of the British government."

Gigantic Antarctic Snow Cruiser for Admiral Byrd Starts Eastward Jaunt

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 27—The 75,000 pound snow cruiser built for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition headed for Boston yesterday on the first leg of a projected journey to the South Pole.

The gigantic ice buggy started the eastern trek from Grant park where it had been on public display for a day. Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, scientific director for Armour institute's research foundation and designer of the cruiser, was at the controls.

On the outer drive Dr. Poulter rolled the juggernaut along at 20 miles an hour but for most of the way to the city limits the machine travelled at half that speed because of turns and underpasses.

Is Real "Road Hog"
Night workmen and motorists along the route stopped to gaze at the strange vehicle as it moved along the dimly lit streets. Both front and rear wheels were turned when the craft negotiated curves. The cruiser can travel sideways at a 25 degree angle.

Because of the cruiser's dimensions—55 feet long and 20 feet wide—highway police preceded the vehicle to clear the regular traffic. Dr. Poulter expected to reach Boston in eight days.

After tests on the sand dunes near Cary, Ind., the cruiser will make an overnight stop at Ft. Wayne, Ind. Other overnight stops will be at Mansfield, O., Akron, O., Fredonia, N. Y., Auburn, N. Y., Albany, N. Y., Framingham, Mass., and Boston.

Motors powered by two huge Diesel engines turn the cruiser's four wheels. Its rubber tires measure 10 feet in diameter. The vehicle has a cruising range of 5,000 miles, accommodations for a five man crew and provisions for a year of exploration.

In supporting roles are J. Edward Bromberg, Alan Curtis, Jed Prouty, Stuart Erwin, Buster Keaton, Donald Meek, George Givot and Eddie Collins.

Ameche has the role of a prop boy who grows up with the industry, becoming one of its greatest directors. Miss Faye as the young Broadway actress he takes to the film capital and introduces to the Screen fans who can remember the old Keystone copy comedies, the Buster Keaton pictures and the custard-pie days will see scenes from them in the new picture, with Jed Prouty and Eddie Collins in sequences with the "cops" Keaton, himself, in scenes with Alice Faye.

Gigantic Antarctic Snow Cruiser for Admiral Byrd Starts Eastward Jaunt

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The 75,000 pound snow cruiser built for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition headed for Boston yesterday on the first leg of a projected journey to the South Pole.

The gigantic ice buggy started the eastern trek from Grant park where it had been on public display for a day. Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, scientific director for Armour institute's research foundation and designer of the cruiser, was at the controls.

On the outer drive Dr. Poulter rolled the juggernaut along at 20 miles an hour but for most of the way to the city limits the machine travelled at half that speed because of turns and underpasses.

Is Real "Road Hog"
Night workmen and motorists along the route stopped to gaze at the strange vehicle as it moved along the dimly lit streets. Both front and rear wheels were turned when the craft negotiated curves. The cruiser can travel sideways at a 25 degree angle.

Because of the cruiser's dimensions—55 feet long and 20 feet wide—highway police preceded the vehicle to clear the regular traffic. Dr. Poulter expected to reach Boston in eight days.

After tests on the sand dunes near Gary, Ind., the cruiser will make an overnight stop at Ft. Wayne, Ind. Other overnight stops will be at Mansfield, O., Akron, O., Fredonia, N. Y., Auburn, N. Y., Albany, N. Y., Framingham, Mass., and Boston.

Motors powered by two huge Diesel engines turn the cruiser's four wheels. Its rubber tires measure 10 feet in diameter. The vehicle has a cruising range of 5,000 miles, accommodations for a five man crew and provisions for a year's exploration.

The technicolor production, "Hollywood Cavalcade," starring Don Ameche and Alice Faye, shows at the State tonight and Saturday. In supporting roles are J. Edward Bromberg, Alan Curtis, Jed Prouty, Stuart Erwin, Buster Keaton, Donald Meek, George Givot and Eddie Collins.

Ameche has the role of a prop boy who grows up with the industry, becoming one of its greatest directors. Miss Faye as the young Broadway actress he takes to the film capital and introduces to the "flickers," becomes its greatest star under his direction. Bromberg's performance of the little man who backs the young director in all his ventures is the best in the picture, next to that of Miss Faye.

Screen fans who can remember the old Keystone cop comedies, the Buster Keaton pictures and the custard-pie days will see scenes from them in the new picture, with Jed Prouty and Eddie Collins in sequences with the "cops" Keaton, himself, in scenes with Alice Faye. In the later sequences of the film, when sound has begun to make its appearance, Al Jolson does a remake of his famous "Jazz Singer" that will bring memories back to more than one fan of the earliest successful talking film. The story is woven from the life histories of several prominent movie pioneers and screen actresses and from the life history of an industry only a few decades old.

Charles Starrett's western, "Riders of Black River," will be seen at the Grand tonight and Saturday.

Al Smith, Jr., Faces Handicap In Seeking N.Y. Council Job

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—When Alfred E. Smith, Jr., made his maiden political speech as a lad of 17 before the Old Neighborhood club in Brooklyn, George Boothby, a veteran newspaper political writer, had to keep kicking his legs under a table to get him through it.

One might have wondered if Al, Jr., is being figuratively booted back into politics today as he sat in his campaign headquarters in the Empire State building—his father's monument—telling why he is a candidate for New York's city council.

Ironically, a reform movement created this city council two years ago to support the old board of aldermen and thereby loosen the grip on city affairs held by Tammany hall, the organization in which the elder Smith rose to be the Democratic nominee for president of the United States.

"When I made that speech 21 years ago in Brooklyn it was 'in pop's' first campaign for governor," recalled young Al. "I had to talk to a lot of old folks I never knew or hadn't seen since I was in short pants."

Likeness of Father
A small, narrow-shouldered little man whose light hair is scarce above a scar crossing his forehead, Al Jr. bears a remarkable physical likeness to his father. More so now, perhaps, because he looks older than his 38 years. But there the resemblance ends—he's not so articulate nor so assured as "the old man" and campaign managers, flanking him right and left at the interview, did a good bit of the talking themselves as well as prompting.

"Since it was formed, this council has been used as a rubber stamp," he said, explaining, however, he was not criticizing New York's reform mayor, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, but the council members.

"It has become the same kind of setup as the old board of aldermen," he added. "I want to see it give the public a real administration. The charter provides it with wider scope, it can pass laws, instead of only ordinances as the aldermen did, but it hasn't done this for two years."

Smith, Jr., admitted he will face a big handicap in going on the ballot Nov. 7 as an independent without the field forces of Tammany or the American labor, Republican or Fusion parties working for him. Under the proportional representation system, probably only five of 20 candidates in Manhattan can win, as one councilman is allotted to every 75,000 votes cast. No Independent could win in Manhattan in the last election.

"Pop" At Bat
"Pop is going to make one or two radio speeches," said Smith, smiling. "This is his ace in the hole, he intimates, for councilmen are chosen by borough-wide vote instead of by districts as were the men and the other for women, were sponsored by the Salem chapter this year with local physicians as instructors. A total of 63 persons, 31 men and 32 women, completed the course.

Dr. L. C. Ziegler and Dr. Guy Byers conducted the course for men from April 4 to May 11, while Dr. R. J. Starbuck was instructor in the course for women from April 16 to June 19. Men and women taking the course studied the Red Cross first aid textbook.

The local chapter's life saving and swimming course, last summer were highly successful. Life saving instructors' certificates were awarded to 22 persons after they had successfully passed examinations given by George T. Costello, field representative of the national Red Cross.

The instructors, in turn, conducted classes in swimming and life saving, awarding 52 senior life saving certificates, 55 junior life saving certificates, one advanced swimmer certificate and one intermediate swimmer certificate. Instruction was also given nine beginners.

POPE ASSAILS DENIAL OF GOD

Encyclical Peace Plea Criticizes Supreme Dictatorships

juridical order, and therefore forbids every appeal to the principles of natural reason and Christian conscience.

"Fortunately, false principles do not always exercise their full influence, especially when the age-old Christian traditions on which people have been nurtured remain, still deeply, even if unconsciously, rooted in their hearts," the pope declared.

This was interpreted as a reference to such devoutly Catholic people as the Poles.

Poland, the pontiff said, "has the right to generous brotherly sympathy of the whole world while it awaits . . . the hour of resurrection in harmony with principles of justice and true peace."

Pope Pius described his "expectation and conviction" that each party will respect its pledged word in treaties as an indispensable condition of peace.

Must Forget Force
He said peace could not be achieved until "both sides are ready to enter into discussion and avoid recourse to force or threats of force in case of delays, hindrances, changes or disputes."

The pope acknowledged that treaties might become outdated with the passing of time. In such cases, he said, "recourse should be had to frank discussion with a view to modifying the treaty or making another in its stead."

"But to consider treaties on principle as ephemeral," he declared, "and tacitly to assume the authority of rescinding them unilaterally when they no longer are to one's advantage would be to abolish all mutual trust among states."

Turning from causes of the present war to prospects of a more enduring settlement at its conclusion, the pontiff asked whether there would be a new international order "animated by justice and by equity towards all" or "repetition of ancient and recent errors."

The hour of victory, he warned, is "the hour of temptation" and the danger exists that "settlements and decisions born in such conditions may be nothing else but injustice under the cloak of justice."

Suspects Guarded In Hospital Beds

EAST LIVERPOOL, Oct. 27.—Police guard was maintained over two men in City hospital today after their car overturned Thursday afternoon in an attempt to escape Police Chief John Fultz of Wellsville, who was in pursuit.

One of the men, John Karnis, 25, of Conway, Pa., is reported in serious condition with a broken neck. Walter Mellott, 28, of Stratton, driver of the car, suffered lacerations.

According to Chief Fultz, the pair speeded into Wellsville and failed to heed his order to stop. The chase ensued along Route 7, southwest of Wellsville. Near Yellow creek the suspects' car overturned onto the railroad tracks bordering the highway. Chief Fultz flagged down a freight train to prevent it from hitting the car. The chief ordered Constable A. L. Newton of Wellsville to watch the men because he said, "he was not satisfied as to their identity or as to what they might have been doing."

Al Smith, Jr., Faces Handicap In Seeking N.Y. Council Job

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—When Alfred E. Smith, Jr., made his maiden political speech as a lad of 17 before the Old Neighbors club in Brooklyn, George Boothby, a veteran newspaper political writer, had to keep kicking his legs under a table to get him through it.

One might have wondered if Al, Jr., is being figuratively booted back into politics today as he sat in his campaign headquarters in the Empire State building—his father's monument—telling why he is a candidate for New York's city council.

Ironically, a reform movement created this city council two years ago to support the old board of aldermen and thereby loosen the grip on city affairs held by Tammany hall, the organization in which the elder Smith rose to be the Democratic nominee for president of the United States.

"When I made that speech 21 years ago in Brooklyn it was in my first campaign for governor," recalled young Al. "I had to talk to a lot of old folks I never knew or hadn't seen since I was in short pants."

Likeness of Father

A small, narrow-shouldered little man whose light hair is scarce above a scar crossing his forehead, Al, Jr., bears a remarkable physical likeness to his father. More so now, perhaps, because he looks older than his 38 years. But there the resemblance ends—he's not so articulate nor so assured as "the old man" and campaign managers, flanking him right and left at the interview, did a good bit of the talking "themselves as well as prompting."

"Since it was formed, this council has been used as a rubber stamp," he said, explaining, however, he was not criticizing New York's reform mayor, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, but the council members.

"It has become the same kind of setup as the old board of aldermen," he added. "I want to see it give the public a real administration. The charter provides it, with wider scope, it can pass laws, instead of only ordinances as the aldermen did, but it hasn't done this for two years."

Smith, Jr., admitted he will face a big handicap in going on the ballot Nov. 7 as an independent without the field forces of Tammany or the American labor, Republican or Fusion parties working for him. Under the proportional representation system, probably only five of 20 candidates in Manhattan can win as one councilman is allotted to every 75,000 votes cast. No independent could win in Manhattan in the last election.

"Pop" At Bat

"Pop is going to make one or two radio speeches," said Smith, smiling. This is his ace in the hole, he intimated, for councilmen are chosen by borough-wide vote instead of by districts as were the aldermen. It was the strong organization of the Tammany machine in the districts that dominated the selection of aldermen for many years.

Although his father was eight years younger when he entered politics as a successful candidate for the state assembly, the son pointed out the elder Smith did not make a similar borough-wide campaign until he was elected sheriff of Manhattan 12 years later.

Al is prepared now to give up what had been, at least, a lucrative law practice for public service. Within two years after he received his law degree in 1926, he was assigned 44 cases by New York judges. In those days his father was still a power in Tammany—before his enemy, John F. Curry, became the boss—and the son was inducted into Tammany with ceremony.

men and the other for women, were sponsored by the Salem chapter this year with local physicians as instructors. A total of 63 persons, 31 men and 32 women, completed the courses.

Dr. L. C. Ziegler and Dr. Guy Byers conducted the course for men from April 4 to May 11, while Dr. R. J. Starbuck was instructor in the course for women from April 10 to June 19. Men and women taking the course studied the Red Cross first aid textbook.

The local chapter's life saving and swimming courses last summer were highly successful. Life saving instructors' certificates were awarded to 22 persons after they had successfully passed examinations given by George T. Costello, field representative of the national Red Cross.

The instructors, in turn, conducted classes in swimming and life saving, awarding 52 senior life saving certificates, 55 junior life saving certificates, one advanced swimmer certificate and one intermediate swimmer certificate. Instruction was also given nine beginners.

juridical order, and therefore forbids every appeal to the principles of natural reason and Christian conscience.

"Fortunately, false principles do not always exercise their full influence, especially when the age-old Christian traditions on which peoples have been nurtured remain still deeply, even if unconsciously, rooted in their hearts," the pope declared.

This was interpreted as a reference to such devoutly Catholic people as the Poles.

Poland, the pontiff said, "has the right to generous brotherly sympathy of the whole world while it awaits . . . the hour of resurrection in harmony with principles of justice and true peace."

Pope Pius described his "expectation and conviction" that each party will respect its pledged word "in treaties as an indispensable condition of peace."

Must Forget Force

He said peace could not be achieved until "both sides are ready to enter into discussion and avoid recourse to force or threats of force in case of delays, hindrances, changes or disputes."

The pope acknowledged that treaties might become outdated with the passing of time. In such cases, he said, "recourse should be had to frank discussion with a view to modifying the treaty or making another in its stead."

"But to consider treaties on principle as ephemeral," he declared, "and tacitly to assume the authority of rescinding them unilaterally when they no longer are to one's advantage would be to abolish all mutual trust among states."

Turning from causes of the present war to prospects of a more enduring settlement at its conclusion, the pontiff asked whether there would be a new international order "animated by justice and by equity towards all" or "repetition of ancient and recent errors."

The hour of victory, he warned,

Suspects Guarded In Hospital Beds

EAST LIVERPOOL, Oct. 27.—Police guard was maintained over two men in City hospital today after their car overturned Thursday afternoon in an attempt to escape Police Chief John Fultz of Wellsville, who was in pursuit.

One of the men, John Karnis, 25, of Conway, Pa., is reported in serious condition with a broken neck. Walter Mellett, 28, of Stratton, driver of the car, suffered lacerations.

According to Chief Fultz, the pair speeded into Wellsville and failed to heed his order to stop. The chase ensued along Route 7, southwest of Wellsville. Near Yellow creek the suspects' car overturned onto the railroad tracks bordering the highway. Chief Fultz flagged down a freight train to prevent it from hitting the car. The chief ordered Constable A. L. Newton of Wellsville to watch the men because he said he was not satisfied as to their identity or as to what they might have been doing.

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 27—"I've murdered my husband" was the message Patrolman Edward Summers got as he answered the police phone at 5:25 a. m. today.

Chief officers found Henry
Smythe, 41, dead in the house where his wife has been living. Mrs.
Smythe told Police Captain Charles
Richman that she had struck him on the head with a hammer while he slept.

The couple had considerable trouble recently, Mrs. Smythe told Richman, and Smythe had not been living at home. She said he came to the house last night and she let him sleep in the front room. Shortly after 5 a. m. today, she awoke and found him dead.
"I should have done it long ago," Richman said. Mrs. Smythe told him.

SLAYS HUSBAND

Youngtown Woman Calls Up Police; Says She Should Have Killed Husband Long Ago

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 27—"I've murdered my husband" was the message Patrolman Edward Summers got as he answered the police phone at 5:22 a. m. today. Officer officers found Henry Smythe, 41, dead in the house where his wife has been living. Mrs. Smythe told Police Captain Charles Richmond that she had struck him on the head with a hammer while he slept.

The couple had considerable trouble recently, Mrs. Smythe told Richmond, and Smythe had not been living at home. She said he came to the house last night and she let him sleep in the front room. Shortly after 5 a. m. today, she crept in and killed him. "I should have done it long ago," Richmond said Mrs. Smythe told him.

Salineville Man Remains In Thin Ranks of West's Old Indian Fighters

SALINEVILLE, Oct. 27.—John Lindsay, 85, one of the few remaining veterans of the Indian war, lives quietly with his wife, Ellen, 81, in a little home on the outskirts of Salineville.

Mrs. Lindsay was Ellen Perkins when they married in September, 1880. After 59 years of life together, they have the distinction of being the couple married longest in Salineville.

The veteran, who still carries himself with military stride, tells of participating in 11 battles, among them Powder River, Crazy Horse, and Rose Bud—all in the region of the Black Hills, a cluster of mountains rising out of the plains of South Dakota and Wyoming.

He was commanded by General Crook while fighting the Sioux and Cheyenne tribes and served as a regular in Company D of the Third United States Cavalry during the rush for gold in the Black Hills in 1875.

Mr. Lindsay recalls many of his experiences during the intermittent skirmishes that lasted from 1873 until 1878. He often was forced to see a comrade scalped while he stood by, unable to give aid. In one battle his horse was shot from under him and his gun stock shattered by a bullet.

One of the major encounters in which he participated was the battle of Powder River, when 188 men were captured and 100 logs burned in the camp of Chief Crazy Horse. The gray-haired pioneer claimed a personal acquaintance with Chiefs Red Cloud, Crazy Horse and Red Shirt.

One of his jobs was aiding in the erection of the first office building in the Black Hills. As a reward for good marksmanship, the government gave him free roving permission in the Black Hills region.

Willard — The ages of the guests at Mrs. Myra McElfish's 85th birthday party totaled 1,110 years. The youngest guest was 69, the oldest 98.

NAZIS MOVE TO ATTACK ZONES

As a rift in the weather appeared, German units skirmished in snow, sleet and icy rain along the 19-mile northern flank last night, getting some artillery support as they wallowed in the ice-crusted mud.

"Local Activities"
The French morning communiqué said that during the night there was local activity of reconnaissance units.

The sudden rigid control of German communications with Belgium and the Netherlands also led the French to suspect that a big German push was imminent.

The French have estimated that Germany now has 1,500,000 men either in front-line or supporting positions.

French reports also said huge numbers of Nazi bombers and fighter planes were being brought up in armadas just behind the Siegfried line, but the French were depending on the weather to keep them grounded, at least temporarily.

Patience, Please

LOVELAND, Colo.—H. R. Van De Vocht shot a big bull elk, all right, but he won't get that elk with charm he's been wanting.

While he was in a restaurant, someone removed both upper jaw teeth from the elk, tied to Van De Vocht's automobile.

SAN FRANCISCO—The fate of Brian a fox terrier pup, whose rescuer threatened the possibility of Mr. and Mrs. William Hurd over having marital freedom again, has been settled in a Solomon-like manner. With the divorce decree, Mrs. Hurd was awarded the dog but with the right of Hurd to take it out walking on Sundays.

WORKING closely with Paris, an American furrier has just put the last stitch in his collection of the unusual in pelts. In his salon are many luxuries, including fur embroidered in paillettes and fur tucked to look accordion-pleated (top sketch). Such wraps are meant to stay with the wearer through dinner and the evening—not to be checked—as decorative as a neck-lace but much warmer.

Furriers have also perfected the trick of combining fur with fabric, as witness the coat, right, with black shirred satin across bodice and sleeves. This is made in sleek broadtail, caracul or Persian lamb, with the banded, tubular muff to match.

Pleated lining for the black galyak military cape, top, to dress the short afternoon frock, or to toss over almost any evening gown. Jewelled clip on the shoulder yoke.

Living Remnants of Johnny Applesed Grow Near Willard

(By Associated Press)
WILLARD, Oct. 27—Living remnants of the Johnny Applesed legend of northwestern Ohio survive in the form of nine aged apple trees, planted originally as part of a nursery to help settlers start their own orchards, may be seen today northwest of nearby Plymouth. Standing amid a sparsely-wooded area of oak and hickory trees, the nine ancient trees all bore greenish-yellow fruit this mid-October. Although not especially palatable, the fruit probably was highly-prized by the early Ohioans who had little other. The apples have an unusual red-colored meat. John Chapman, popularly known as Johnny Applesed, is known to have planted hundreds of acres in apple trees throughout Ohio and Indiana between 1790 and 1825. The trees growing near Plymouth were among his last plantings. The old nursery stands on what was for years the Ellis farm, now the property of Mrs. C. Kuhn. Chapman made his home in Indiana, and died at Fort Wayne in 1845. Several monuments have been erected in Ohio and Indiana to the memory of Johnny Applesed.

NAZIS MOVE TO ATTACK ZONES

As a rift in the weather appeared, German units skirmished in snow, sleet and icy rain along the 100-mile northern flank last night, getting some artillery support as they wallowed in the ice-crusted mud.

"Local Activities"
The French morning communiqué said that during the night there was "local activity of reconnaissance units."

The sudden rigid control of German communications with Belgium and the Netherlands also led the French to suspect that a big German push was imminent.

The French have estimated that Germany now has 1,500,000 men either in front-line or supporting positions.

French forces also said huge numbers of Nazi bombers and fighters were being brought up to positions just behind the Siegfried line, but the French were depending on the weather to keep them grounded, at least temporarily.

Furriers are Clever

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WORKING closely with Paris, an American furrier has just put the last stitch in his collection of the unusual in pelts. In his salon are many luxuries, including fur embroidered in paillettes and fur tucked to look accordion-pleated (top sketch). Such wraps are meant to stay with the wearer through dinner and the evening—not to be checked—as decorative as a necklace but much warmer.

Furriers have also perfected the trick of combining fur with fabric, as witness the coat, right, with black shirred satin across bodice and sleeves. This is made in sleek broadtail, caracul or Persian lamb, with the banded, tubular muff to match.

Pleated lining for the black galyak military cape, top, to dress the short afternoon frock, or to toss over almost any evening gown. Jeweled clip on the shoulder yoke.

OHIOANS SEE ADJOURNMENT

Final Consideration On Neutrality Bill Expected Shortly

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Rep. James G. Polk (D-Ohio) forecast that Congress would adjourn the special session next week after house action on neutrality legislation.

He said indications were that the senate would send the measure to the house before the weekend and that a final consideration would require only a few days.

Polk is among Ohio members who have not committed themselves definitely for or against repeal of the arms embargo.

Rep. John Voris (R-Ohio), credited with upsetting administration plans to repeal the neutrality law several months ago, expressed doubt that the house had changed its mind.

A senate vote to repeal the section, said Voris, would not settle the issue.

"It is quite possible," he added in an interview, "that the balance of power rests with members who have not decided one way or the other, and I believe these will oppose the change after debate."

Rep. Earl R. Lewis (R-Ohio) told the house repeal of the arms embargo would be a "start down the same path" that led to involvement of this country in the World War.

Declaring the embargo was adopted specifically to keep the country out of war, Lewis asked: "Is it not strange that we should so soon seriously consider the reversal of a policy so recently and so deliberately framed?"

Lewis recalled events during the World War, including the sale of arms to belligerents by the United States, and said:

"Now at the very outset of this new war it is proposed that we start down the same path. If we do, can there be any doubt to what tragic destination it leads? Lifting of the embargo is the first step on the path that has no turning."

"We dare not go to war," the Ohioan said. "When we entered the World War our national debt was only about a billion and a quarter dollars. We came out of that war with a national debt of more than twenty-six billion dollars, a staggering sum, but if we enter this present war we shall enter with a national debt of more than forty-one billion dollars. How much more debt can this nation stand and survive?"

"The national debt at the conclusion of a long drawn out war will make dictatorship inevitable."

The Man's Right

SPOKANE, Wash.—Deputy Prosecutor Carl Lang told Superior Judge Louis Buage he was in doubt as to the proper charge against a man who stole 89 dozen golf balls, but for the record he made it grand larceny.

"That's right, Mr. Lang," said the golf-playing judge. "There is a nuisance value to golf balls that warrants the charge."

RUTH HAD HELP

So Declares Governor's Aid As Hunt For Escaped T-unk Slayer Is Expanded

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 27.—Y. C. White says it is "per-ly obvious" that Winnie Ruth Judd had help in her midnight flight from Arizona State hospital.

White, secretary to Gov. Bob Jones, is directing an investigation into the trunk slayer's escape. He said he believes the one-time "Tiger Woman" had assistance both inside and outside the institution. He ordered the inquiry pressed until the "person or persons" responsible are discovered.

Meantime, baffled officers conducted a clueless search for the twice condemned murderess. Their theories placed Mrs. Judd from within a few blocks of the hospital to as far away as Mexico City. Sheriff Lon Jordan and a deputy searched the home of Mrs. Judd's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, as a "precautionary measure."

ARE YOUR AUTOMOBILE

WHEELS OUT OF BALANCE

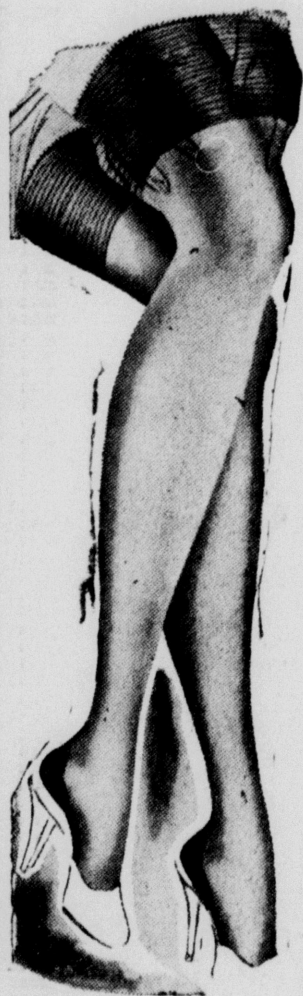

If all your wheels haven't been balanced on a dynamic wheel balancer within the past few months, it's almost a sure bet your tires are wearing out too fast and that there is a slight shimmy and weave to your car.

The Dynamic Wheel Balancer is the newest equipment known to the automobile industry. It's almost human, for it it but talks. The wheel is spun from speeds of one mile to as high as 100 miles per hour, and by an electric eye arrangement anyone can see just where the wheel is out of balance. By this new method less weight is used to put the wheel in perfect balance than in methods that were new only a very short time ago.

OHIOANS SEE ADJOURNMENT

Final Consideration On Neutrality Bill Expected Shortly

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Rep. James G. Polk (D-Ohio) forecast that Congress would adjourn the special session next week after house action on neutrality legislation.

He said indications were that the senate would send the measure to the house before the weekend and that a final consideration would require only a few days.

Polk is among Ohio members who have not committed themselves definitely for or against repeal of the arms embargo.

Rep. John Vorys (R-Ohio), credited with upsetting administration plans to repeal the arms embargo section of the neutrality law several months ago, expressed doubt that the house had changed its mind.

A senate vote to repeal the section, said Vorys, would not settle the issue.

"It is quite possible," he added in an interview, "that the balance of power rests with members who have not decided one way or the other, and I believe these will oppose the change after debate."

Rep. Earl R. Lewis (R-Ohio) told the house repeal of the arms embargo would be a "start down the same path" that led to involvement of this country in the World War.

Declaring the embargo was adopted specifically to keep the country out of war, Lewis asked: "Is it not strange that we should so soon seriously consider the reversal of a policy so recently and so deliberately framed?"

Lewis recalled events during the World War, including the sale of arms to belligerents by the United States, and said:

"Now at the very outset of this new war it is proposed that we start down the same path. If we do, can there be any doubt to what tragic destination it leads? Lifting of the embargo is the first step on the path that has no turning."

"We dare not go to war," the Ohioan said. "When we entered the World War our national debt was only about a billion and a quarter dollars. We came out of that war with a national debt of more than twenty-six billion dollars, a staggering sum, but if we enter this present war we shall enter with a national debt of more than forty-one billion dollars. How much more debt can this nation stand and survive?"

"The national debt at the conclusion of a long drawn out war will make dictatorship inevitable."

County's Oldest Football Rivals Clash In Game Saturday

QUAKERS FACE LISBON SQUAD IN SIXTH GAME

Blue Devils, Lacking Veterans, Have Lost Six Straight Games

Football foes since the "gray nineties", Salem High school's Quakers and Lisbon's Blue Devils resume one of the oldest gridiron rivalries in Ohio when they meet at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the county fairgrounds in Lisbon.

Continuing a series started in 1896, the two ancient Columbiana county rivals will be meeting for the 30th time. Salem holds a wide edge in the 29-game series, having won 19 games to Lisbon's eight. Two contests ended in a tie. The Quakers won last year's game, 12-0.

Officials for the game will be H. C. Wagner of Warren, Paul Avery of Howland and Hugh McPhee of Youngstown.

Start Last Half
The Quakers will be starting on the last half of their 1939 season with a record of three wins, one tie and one defeat for the first half of the campaign. Their first half record lists victories over Sebring, Ravenna and Wellsville, and a tie with East Liverpool and a loss to Lorain.

Seeking its first win, Lisbon will be playing its seventh game of the season. The Blue Devils have dropped six straight games, losing to Toledo, Minerva, Boardman, East Palestine, Sebring and East Liverpool.

The two county rivals have met two common foes, Sebring and East Liverpool. The Quakers tied Lisbon 6-6, while the Blue Devils lost to the Potlows, 38-0, last week. Against Sebring, Salem went down to defeat, 13-6.

The Blue Devils made their only touchdown of the season against Sebring. With only two of last year's lettermen on the squad, Coach Howland has built his team this year with an eye to the future, using a large amount of new talent which will be available for service again next year.

Gain Experience
While Ziemke's "green" team has not been able to win any games, players who will be back next year have been gaining experience which will be valuable when the 1940 season rolls around.

The two lettermen on Ziemke's team are Clem McGoggin, quarterback, and Paul Culler, left tackle. McGoggin has proved himself an able ball-carrier and capable field general. He figures in many of the running plays.

Newcomers
Hasbrouck and Hendricks had never played varsity ball until this year. Cartwright, Rodi, Pilmer and Southernland saw a small amount of action as reserves last season.

Unless Lisbon provides unexpected stiff competition, Coach Carl F. Schroeder will probably allow the Salem reserves to strut their stuff against the Blue Devils. Schroeder dismissed the Quaker regulars from practice two days this week and concentrated on developing the reserve talent.

Although reserves are expected to see plenty of action, Schroeder will probably not take any chances with the Blue Devils. He is expected to start his first string team and see how this eleven performs against the Blue Devils before inserting second stringers into the lineup.

The game will be the first the Quakers have played on Saturday this season. Their remaining schedule includes a night game at Canton against the Blue Devils on Friday, Nov. 3, and afternoon games against Barborton, Saturday, Nov. 11; Youngstown, Saturday, Nov. 18; and Alliance, Thursday, Nov. 23.

Miller Bout Tops Alliance Program

ALLIANCE, Oct. 27.—Bill Miller, flashy Alliance featherweight, will meet Cyrus Blakley of Warren in the main bout of the Christopher Columbus hall here tonight.

Other bouts will send Vincent Stearns of Canton against Sammy Horn of Niles, Sammy Jones of Canton against Mike Joseph of Niles, Nate Burris of Alliance against Chris Tabor of Niles, Bob Johnson of Alliance against Vincent Tarpem of Canton and Norman Mitchell of Alliance against Melio Donelli of Niles.

BOWLING RESULTS

No longer is Mayor John Arnold of Leontonia just another bowler in one of Salem's many leagues.

Arnold, who has been bowling in Salem for three seasons, engraved his name high on the list of the city's outstanding bowlers as he hammered out a 653 series in the Commercial league at the Grate Recreation alleys last night.

Rolling with the Crescent Machine team of Leontonia, Arnold started off with a splendid 237 game and maintained the fast pace by posting 207 in his second game and 207 in his third game to chalk up the highest series rolled in any Salem league this season.

Paced by Arnold's fine performance, the Crescent took two out of three games with the Ohio Bell.

Smith Creamery remained in the lead in the Commercial league by taking two out of three games with the Salem Polo Club. Washingtonville Odd Fellows advanced from fifth to second place on the strength of three wins over the Leontonia Eagles.

In other Commercial league matches, the Merit Shoes won two games over the E. W. Bliss Co. and the Trades Class took two out of three games with the People's Lumber.

A five-way tie for first place in the Electric Furnace league was broken at the Masonic temple alleys as the Shippers won three games from the Transformers to gain sole possession of the lead. None of the other teams who were tied with the Shippers last week was able to win three games.

The Structural Dept. won two out of three heats with the Office. The Electricians posted two wins over the Draftsmen and the Machinists won three games from the Purchasing Dept.

SUNDAY CHALK TALKS AID TO CORNELL TEAM

Players Meet Day After Each Game To Talk Over Errors

COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.—These Cornell university boys from Ithaca, N. Y., who arrived with the dawn today to meet Ohio State Saturday in the nation's No. 1 grid game, are just a bunch of "Sunday school" football players.

But they seem to have learned their Sunday school lessons well, for they've beaten Syracuse 19-6, Princeton 20-7, and Penn State 47-0, a record which stacks up pretty well alongside the Bucks record of wins over Missouri, Northwestern and Minnesota.

The eastern experts have it that Carl Snively will present for Ohio fans one of the most highly-trained teams, in a technical sense, ever to invade the Buckeye realm. The Bucks are warned to make no mistakes.

Part of Training
It seems that "Sunday school" is an integral part of the Cornell training and football season. Each Sunday afternoon the squad is called together in a lecture room, and there the coaches go over the game of the previous day, pointing out all mistakes, Scouts, back from watching future opponents, tell of the strong and weak points of those foes.

Practically every college team has similar sessions—but Cornell is unique in that it holds its post-mortem the day after the game, while most of the others wait until Monday to re-hash the contests of Saturday.

A highly scientific brand of training for a highly scientific brand of football is Cornell's byword. It brought the Big Red to the Ivy league championship a year ago, and has the Cornells on the high road to fame again this season.

That fame will help draw some 55,000 to 60,000 fans into Ohio's double-deck horseshoe tomorrow. Snively, in his criticism of each player, gets his ideas down on paper, so that the gridders can study his coach's words of wisdom at his leisure. A personal letter to each player is written each week, discussing the previous game in general, and the individual's play in particular.

The letter-writing doesn't halt with the football season. During the rest of the year Snively corresponds with his boys on training methods, spring practice, winter conditioning and other football matters.

Use Pictures Freely
Snively probably uses motion pictures more extensively than any other coach. Pictures are taken of every game in its entirety, and the important squad scrimmages also are "shot." Then the coaches and players go into a huddle, iron out all flaws shown in the movies, and perfect the plays for future encounters.

Back in 1874, when Cornell wanted to make a trip west for a grid game, President Andrew D. White of the university put his foot down with:

"I refuse to allow 40 men to go 400 miles merely to agitate a bag of wind."

The 1939 version, so far as Cornell is concerned, is: "We're not sending a squad all that distance with the intention of losing."

In last week's "Sunday school" class, Coach Snively told his boys: "No football players have been killed or maimed playing Ohio State this year, and there is no reason why Cornell should not make a creditable showing even though against superior odds."

And Ohioans, after looking at the Cornell record, ask: "What odds?"

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 27.—Presenting the first boxing show of the winter season, Tuesday, Oct. 31 at Rayen-Wood auditorium. Joe Lewis, Youngstown's newest sports promoter, will bring together Al Wardlow, promising Youngstown middleweight, and hard-punching Tony Zale of Chicago.

Zale, who has done most of his boxing around Chicago, hails from the steel mills of Gary, Ind., where he was a pudger. At the present time he is rated seventh by the National Boxing association. He has boxed some of the most prominent boys in the middleweight division today.

In 1937 Zale was the Golden Glove champ of Chicago. He was victorious in all of his bouts in 1938 with the exception of one with Billy Celebron whom he defeated later on. He has defeated such strong foes as Nate Bolden, Henry Shaft, Jimmie Clark, King Wyatt and Tony Ciacio. In Madison Square Garden, he had sensational fights with Enzo Innozzi and Babe Cregevon. He lost a doubtful decision to Ken Overlin.

edo, Tex., and "Tug" Wilson of Mississippi battled to a draw in the semi-final, going the full 40 minutes. Both had one fall.

"Indian Ike" used an airplane spin to drop Wilson in 20 minutes and 50 seconds, but Wilson came back 19 minutes later to pin Cazell with a shoulder seissors.

Clyde Stratton, brother of the famous Walter, was awarded a decision over "Cyclone" Roth of Canton in the curtain raiser after Roth had been disqualified for using foul tactics. The scheduled 30-minute match ended in 19 minutes and 15 seconds.

CROSLLEY TO USE REDS' PROFIT ON IMPROVING TEAM

If Money Talks, Cincinnati Can Say Plenty About 1940

CINCINNATI, Oct. 27.—If money will talk, the National league champion Reds likely will not remain silent long toward betterment of next year's team.

Fans whose season-long faith suffered a big jolt at the club's collapse in the last World Series game here, found cause today for renewed hope in President Powell Crosley's statement that from profits estimated at $400,000, a "substantial reserve" had been laid by "for the acquisition of players' contracts to strengthen the club for the future."

From his hospital room, Crosley said his club had topped home attendance records of any team in either league by playing to 1,133,926 paying fans.

Dodgers Record
The Brooklyn Dodgers drew 1,007,762 paid customers and 150,000 "ladies day" fans.

Crosley listed these expenditures: "In excess of $162,000 for players' contracts over and above what we received from sales of players' contracts," more than $115,000 in improving the playing park, another $120,000 in acquiring the Birmingham, Ala., club "and other expenses," the farm system which we hope will produce future players for the Reds."

In addition, the club reduced its indebtedness some $62,000, paid off arrearage dividends and declared a $650 payment on common shares."

County's Oldest Football Rivals Clash In Game Saturday

QUAKERS FACE LISBON SQUAD IN SIXTH GAME

Blue Devils, Lacking Veterans, Have Lost Six Straight Games

Football foes since the "gray nineties", Salem High school's Quakers and Lisbon's Blue Devils resume one of the oldest gridiron rivalries in Ohio when they meet at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the county fairgrounds in Lisbon.

Continuing a series started in 1896, the two ancient Columbiana county rivals will be meeting for the 30th time. Salem holds a wide edge in the 29-game series, having won 19 games to Lisbon's eight. Two contests ended in a tie. The Quakers won last year's game, 12-0.

Officials for the game will be H. C. Wagner of Warren, Paul Avery of Howland and Hugh McPhee of Youngstown.

Start Last Half
The Quakers will be starting on the last half of their 1939 season with a record of three wins, one tie and one defeat for the first half of the campaign. Their first half record lists victories over Sebring, Ravenna and Wellsville, a tie with East Liverpool and a loss to Struthers.

Still seeking its first win, Lisbon will be playing its seventh game of the season. The Blue Devils have dropped six straight games, losing to Toledo, Minerva, Boardman, East Palestine, Sebring and East Liverpool.

The two county rivals have met two common foes, Sebring and East Liverpool. The Quakers tied Liverpool, 6-6, while the Blue Devils lost to the Potters, 38-0, last week. Against Sebring, Salem hung up a 25-0 victory while Lisbon went down to defeat, 12-6.

The Blue Devils made their only touchdown of the season against Sebring.

With only two of last year's lettermen on the squad, Coach Howard Ziemke has built his team this year with an eye to the future, using a large amount of new talent which will be available for service again next year.

Gain Experience
While Ziemke's "green" team has not been able to win any games, players who will be back next year have been gaining experience which will be valuable when the 1940 season rolls around.

The two lettermen on Ziemke's first team are Clem McGoggin, quarterback, and Paul Collier, left tackle. McGoggin has proved himself an able ball-carrier and capable field general. He figures in many of the running plays.

Newcomers
Hasbrouck and Hendricks had never played varsity ball until this year. Cartwright, Rodi, Pilmer and Southerland saw a small amount of action as reserves last season.

Unless Lisbon provides unexpectedly stiff competition, Coach Carl F. Schroeder will probably allow the Salem reserves to strut their stuff against the Blue Devils. Schroeder dismissed the Quaker regulars from practice two days this week and concentrated on developing the reserve team.

Although reserves are expected to see plenty of action, Schroeder will probably not take any chances with the Blue Devils. He is expected to start his first string team and see how this eleven performs against the Blue Devils before inserting second stringers into the lineup.

The game will be the first the Quakers have played on Saturday this season. Their remaining schedule includes a night game at Dover Friday, Nov. 3, and afternoon games against Barborton, Saturday, Nov. 11; Youngstown South, Saturday, Nov. 18; and Alliance, Thursday, Nov. 23.

Miller Bout Tops Alliance Program

ALLIANCE, Oct. 27.—Bill Miller, flashy Alliance featherweight, will meet Cyrus Blackley of Warren in the main bout of the Christopher C. boxing show at the Christopher Columbus hall here tonight.

Other bouts will send Vincent Horn of Canton against Sammy Jones of Niles, Sammy Jones of Niles, Nate Burris of Alliance against Chris Tabor of Niles, Bob Johnson of Alliance against Vincent Tarpen of Canton and Norman Mitchell of Alliance against Mello Donelli of Niles.

BOWLING RESULTS

No longer is Mayor John Arnold of Leetonia just another bowler in one of Salem's many leagues.

Arnold, who has been bowling in Salem for three seasons, engraved his name high on the list of the city's outstanding bowlers as he hammered out a 653 series in the Commercial league at the Grate Recreation alleys last night.

Rolling with the Crescent Machine team of Leetonia, Arnold started off with a splendid 237 game and maintained the fast pace by posting 207 in his second game and 207 in his third game to chalk up the highest series rolled in any Salem league this season.

Paced by Arnold's fine performance, the Crescent took two out of three games with the Ohio Bell.

Smith Creamery remained in the lead in the Commercial league by taking two out of three games with the Salem Polo Club, Washingtonville Odd Fellows advanced from fifth to second place on the strength of three wins over the Leetonia Eagles.

In other Commercial league matches, the Merit Shoes won two games over the E. W. Bliss Co. and the Trades Class took two out of three games with the People's Lumber.

A five-way tie for first place in the Electric Furnace league was broken at the Masonic temple alleys as the Shippers won three games from the Transformers to gain sole possession of the lead. None of the other teams who were tied with the Shippers last week was able to win three games.

The Structural Dept. won two out of three heats with the Office, the Electricians posted two wins over the Draftsmen and the Machinists won three games from the Purchasing Dept.

SUNDAY CHALK TALKS AID TO CORNELL TEAM

Players Meet Day After Each Game To Talk Over Errors

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.—These Cornell university boys from Ithaca, N. Y., who arrived with the dawn today to meet Ohio State Saturday in the nation's No. 1 grid game, are just a bunch of "Sunday school" football players.

But they seem to have learned their Sunday school lessons well, for they've beaten Syracuse 19-6, Princeton 20-7, and Penn State 47-0, a record which stacks up pretty well alongside the Bucks record of wins over Missouri, Northwestern and Minnesota.

The eastern experts have it that Carl Snavey will present for Ohio fans one of the most highly-trained teams, in a technical sense, ever to invade the Buckeye realm. The Bucks are warned to make no mistakes.

Part of Training

It seems that "Sunday school" is an integral part of the Cornell training and football season. Each Sunday afternoon the squad is called together in a lecture room, and there the coaches go over the game of the previous day, pointing out all mistakes. Scouts, back from watching future opponents, tell of the strong and weak points of those foes.

Practically every college team has similar sessions—but Cornell is unique in that it holds its post-mortem the day after the game, while most of the others wait until Monday to re-hash the contests of Saturday.

A highly scientific brand of training for a highly scientific brand of football is Cornell's byword. It brought the Big Red the Ivy league championship a year ago, and has the Cornells on the high road to fame again this season.

That fame will help draw some 55,000 to 60,000 fans into Ohio's double-deck horseshoe tomorrow. Snavey, in his criticism of each player, gets his ideas down on paper, so that the gridder can study his coach's words of wisdom at his leisure. A personal letter to each player is written each week, discussing the previous game in general, and the individual's play in particular.

The letter-writing doesn't halt with the football season. During the rest of the year Snavey corresponds with his boys on training methods, spring practice, winter conditioning and other football matters.

Use Pictures Freely

Snavey probably uses motion pictures more extensively than any other coach. Pictures are taken of every game in its entirety, and the important squad scrimmages also are "shot." Then the coaches and players go into a huddle, iron out all flaws shown in the movies, and perfect the plays for future encounters.

In last week's "Sunday school" class, Coach Snavey told his boys: "No football players have been killed or maimed playing Ohio State this year, and there is no reason why Cornell should not make a creditable showing even though against superior odds."

And Ohioans, after looking at the Cornell record, ask: "What odds?"

Cornell Game

COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.—Mounting football fever caused a new "Quarterbacks club" to break out here on the eve of the Cornell squad's arrival for its clash with the Buckeyes tomorrow in one of the nation's top-notch games.

The new group formed on the university campus by the Ohio States, a student organization, is similar to the downtown organization of "experts" who meet weekly to view movies of previous games and "advise" the coaching staff. Both seek to promote Ohio State spirit.

Cornell's squad, arriving at dawn by sleeper from Ithaca, N. Y., will be followed tonight by the Big Red's 100-piece band, which will vie with state's famous marching musicians at the game.

After registering at a downtown hotel, the Cornell squad will work out during the day in the stadium.

Commissioner Gehrig Now

Howdy, Mr. Commissioner! We're talking to Lou Gehrig, erstwhile New York Yankees' baseball star, who is shown taking the oath of office as New York City parole commissioner for a 10-year term. Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York is at the right.

where tarpaulin has kept the gridiron dry despite recent rains. The Bucks will run through light drill on a practice field and spend the night at a country club.

Entity of Indian Is Seen On Wane By 'Flying Cloud'

(By United Press)
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 27. — F. B. "Flying Cloud" Zehn, graduate of the Carlisle Indian school and nationally known interpreter, believes that the Indian entity will be extinct within five years.
Zehn said that Indians rapidly are being absorbed by the white race through intermarriage.
"They have no long to live as a nation," he predicted. "The time will shortly come when the Indian will be nothing but a memory."
Zehn said that actually the Indian is not a "red man" but a "cop- per man" whose origin has been established as Mongolian.
"Dress an Indian like a Chinese or Japanese and you would swear he is an Oriental," he said. "Dress him in Indian garments and he will take him for an Indian."
He believes that the American Indian came to this hemisphere thousands of years ago from Asia across Alaska and the continent of Asia were linked.
Although Indians are portrayed in story and fiction as wild, untamed savages, Zehn says nothing could be farther from the truth.
"In the first place, the Indian was a peasan and not a savage," he said. "In the second place, the Indian was a piker in war when compared with the white man, the master of all peoples."
Zehn said there is no reason left for resentment, however, for "we did a lot of scalping."
He concluded that the Indians were glibble to the white man's tricks.
"What was our scalping compared to the way the white men skinned us?" he asked.

French Tanks for Westwall

These pictures demonstrate the terrific power of the new French 70 to 90-ton tanks, which are expected to play an important role in the fighting on the Western front. The tanks snap trees as if they were twigs, plough right through brick walls. At top, the monster is tilted nose up as it encounters a wall. Bottom, it crushes the wall to continue grimly on its way.

The tanks snap trees as if they were twigs, plough right through brick walls. At top, the monster is tilted nose up as it encounters a wall. Bottom, it crushes the wall to continue grimly on its way.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY"

By VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XXXI
"Handsome Regan Retired."
Owner Crisp had put Handsome on the voluntary retired list. He had his ticket back to Charlotte, Michigan. Crisp made a short statement of regret that such action had been necessary. "We feel such a drastic measure will best serve the team and Regan."
So they'd kicked him out! Just when he was ready to behave himself. Mike dropped onto the davenport, covered her face with her hands. What would this do to him? Mike prepared their dinner. She dressed carefully in a simple white frock. Then she sat down to wait. He would come, or telephone. She tried to read. That was no good... at 10 o'clock when she was desperate, the telephone rang. It was Bob Kenyon.

"Oh, yes, I was sleeping when the phone rang." He must have noticed the disappointment in her voice.

"Do you want me to drop by before I go home?"

"Wouldn't it be better to wait, Bob? I think I'd better go right to bed."

When Mike went back to the davenport she threw herself face down on it and wept. Was this the way she'd made Handsome feel when he had run off and married Iris? How could she treat Bob so? But it was really beyond her control.

Until she fell asleep at 2 o'clock, she was sure Handsome would come. When she awakened in the morning, still in her white dress, she got up wearily, bathed her hot face, put last night's dinner away.

Mike must keep up a front at the office. But Bob sensed something was wrong. She felt he knew. She could see by the hurt in his eyes that he understood her excuses. He drove her home before six and when she refused to let him come up, he went away without protest.

She did not think of Bob for long. She was waiting again for Handsome. At ten o'clock the door buzzer sounded. She jumped up, rushed to open it. With Malone walked into the room. He looked about for a moment, then he asked sharply:

"Where is he?"

"Handsome?"

"Yes, of course." Mike had never seen Malone like this before.

"I don't know..."

"Now look here, Mike. You know perfectly well. He was here night before last."

He dropped into a chair and she told him what had happened, and how she had waited for Handsome, last night. Wish had his hand over his face. He hadn't slept since Handsome disappeared.

"When Mr. Crisp gave him his railroad ticket, he left without a word. He cashed it in a saloon up around 49th Street about ten minutes later. He got full value for it. The bartender is a red-hot fan."

"That's all the money he had?"

"Yes, Iris is selling the furniture. She's going to California, she says, and maybe to Honolulu. She says she hasn't heard from him and she doesn't want to."

"But the bills are still unpaid?"

Mike asked.

"Of course. What there is left, is in her name. I'll not see where the money went." They sat and looked at each other.

"He'll come to you eventually, I suppose," Wish said finally. "His father telephoned us a couple of times. I feel sorry for the old man. But Larry didn't send him any word. He just disappeared out of that bar... just as though the earth opened up."

"That is the way matters stood in mid-July. New York had lost a great pitcher. The fans raised a terrific hue-and-cry. But that did not alter the situation. The days dragged on. Mike had to keep up pretenses. She saw Bob Kenyon when he was so insistent that she did not have the courage to say no. At the office things appeared to be the same as always. When they were together, it was like old times. Except that Bob did not speak of their marriage any more. Mike was grateful that he spared her that.

In early September, Regan, Senior, came to town. Mike had dinner with him and he came back to her apartment to talk with her. He was trying to pay up Handsome's debts around the city. It was taking most of his ready cash.

"I'm afraid I've spoiled him," the old man said. He'd aged years since his wife's death. "But he could always get around his mother and me."

The elderly man took a card from his pocket. It had come to him in July, not long after Handsome had disappeared. It was mailed from New York and read:

"Don't worry about me. I'm going to sea."

Mr. Regan shook his head. I'm hoping that is true. They've been through the hospitals, every place he turned. She pulled on his arm. He got up and went with her. She could feel his steps faster. And she wondered if she could ever get him up the flights of steps to her apartment. But she managed it.

Once in the sitting room, she bolted the door carefully. Handsome had dropped onto the davenport. Mike asked no questions. She went on into the bathroom and started the water in the tub. Then she came back to the living room, and took off his worn shoes. He wore no socks. She helped him remove his coat and shirt.

"Now I'm going to burn these filthy things," she said. "Come, get your bath." He was too exhausted to protest. She piled the old clothing on a newspaper in the middle of the living room. Then she went to the telephone. She called Dr. Christian at the Eureka Hotel.

"Can you come, doctor? Don't ask me any questions and don't tell anybody where you're going." He said he'd be there in half an hour.

Mike had no clothing she could give Handsome. She got a light weight blanket. That would have to do for a bathrobe. She prepared her own bed for him. Shortly he came staggering out of the steam-filled bath room. She steadied him until he got into bed. He lay quiet, and then she brought him a glass of milk, held his head up while he drank it. He hardly seemed conscious of where he was.

Dr. Christian came into the apartment with a high degree of curiosity. In a few swift words Mike explained things. "If we send him to a hospital, there'll be all that publicity and they'll know the condition he's in. Will you help me?"

The physician nodded: "We'll see how bad off he is." He stayed with Handsome for half an hour. Then he came out into the living room where Mike waited.

"I think I'll stay on tonight. I hesitate to send for a nurse. The news is bound to leak out if we do." He took off his coat. "Mike, me some coffee. Mike. You look as though you needed some yourself."

Kenyon was back from his trip. Mike was so glad to see him that he was touched, and began to hope that maybe she would gradually forget Handsome. So, in honor of his home coming, Mike invited him down to the apartment for dinner. It was almost like old times. They laughed and talked, and he insisted on helping with the dishes.

At ten o'clock, Bob suggested they go for a drive, but Mike had a better idea. "Let's walk down and around the Square. It's such a lovely night." They went down on to the crowded streets. Mike loved historic Washington Square. Then they walked on up Fifth Avenue a little way, finally stopped at a sidewalk cafe.

"We've been happy together tonight," Bob said.

"Very happy, Bob. I always am with you."

They walked back slowly. It was getting late. There were few people now on the benches in the park. Mike looked at her watch.

"I should be in bed now, Bob!"

"I thought she seemed suddenly to become tense and nervous."

"Anything wrong?"

"Just tired."

At the apartment doorway, she said goodnight to him, watched him climb into his car, parked at the curb. She waved to him, and went slowly into the doorway. Bob put the car in gear and motored up town.

Hardly had the tail light of Bob's car disappeared around the corner than Mike emerged from the apartment house. She hurried up the street as fast as she could without attracting attention. Breathless she came out into Washington Square, walked across to a bench well back in the shadow. A man was huddled there asleep, his head on his arm. Mike touched him.

"I've come for you, Larry. He started up and fell back, blinking. "Skipper!" He had a four-day growth of beard. His clothes were ready to fall from him. He was thin and haggard. He was a park bench dweller.

"Come!" She tried to get him to his feet. She was nervous that somebody would see her talking to him. Handsome's height made him so conspicuous. That was how she had noticed him as, silhouetted against the street lights, she had seen his tall frame slouch toward the park bench where she found him.

"I came to you. That man was with you in your apartment," he murmured. She pulled on his arm. He got up and went with her. She could feel his steps faster. And she wondered if she could ever get him up the flights of steps to her apartment. But she managed it.

Shortly he came staggering out of the steam-filled bath room. She steadied him until he got into bed. He lay quiet, and then she brought him a glass of milk, held his head up while he drank it. He hardly seemed conscious of where he was.

Dr. Christian came into the apartment with a high degree of curiosity. In a few swift words Mike explained things. "If we send him to a hospital, there'll be all that publicity and they'll know the condition he's in. Will you help me?"

The physician nodded: "We'll see how bad off he is." He stayed with Handsome for half an hour. Then he came out into the living room where Mike waited.

"I think I'll stay on tonight. I hesitate to send for a nurse. The news is bound to leak out if we do." He took off his coat. "Mike, me some coffee. Mike. You look as though you needed some yourself."

Kenyon was back from his trip. Mike was so glad to see him that he was touched, and began to hope that maybe she would gradually forget Handsome. So, in honor of his home coming, Mike invited him down to the apartment for dinner. It was almost like old times. They laughed and talked, and he insisted on helping with the dishes.

At ten o'clock, Bob suggested they go for a drive, but Mike had a better idea. "Let's walk down and around the Square. It's such a lovely night." They went down on to the crowded streets. Mike loved historic Washington Square. Then they walked on up Fifth Avenue a little way, finally stopped at a sidewalk cafe.

"We've been happy together tonight," Bob said.

"Very happy, Bob. I always am with you."

They walked back slowly. It was getting late. There were few people now on the benches in the park. Mike looked at her watch.

"I should be in bed now, Bob!"

"I thought she seemed suddenly to become tense and nervous."

"Anything wrong?"

"Just tired."

At the apartment doorway, she said goodnight to him, watched him climb into his car, parked at the curb. She waved to him, and went slowly into the doorway. Bob put the car in gear and motored up town.

Hardly had the tail light of Bob's car disappeared around the corner than Mike emerged from the apartment house. She hurried up the street as fast as she could without attracting attention. Breathless she came out into Washington Square, walked across to a bench well back in the shadow. A man was huddled there asleep, his head on his arm. Mike touched him.

"I've come for you, Larry. He started up and fell back, blinking. "Skipper!" He had a four-day growth of beard. His clothes were ready to fall from him. He was thin and haggard. He was a park bench dweller.

"Come!" She tried to get him to his feet. She was nervous that somebody would see her talking to him. Handsome's height made him so conspicuous. That was how she had noticed him as, silhouetted against the street lights, she had seen his tall frame slouch toward the park bench where she found him.

"I came to you. That man was with you in your apartment," he murmured. She pulled on his arm. He got up and went with her. She could feel his steps faster. And she wondered if she could ever get him up the flights of steps to her apartment. But she managed it.

Once in the sitting room, she bolted the door carefully. Handsome had dropped onto the davenport. Mike asked no questions. She went on into the bathroom and started the water in the tub. Then she came back to the living room, and took off his worn shoes. He wore no socks. She helped him remove his coat and shirt.

"Now I'm going to burn these filthy things," she said. "Come, get your bath." He was too exhausted to protest. She piled the old clothing on a newspaper in the middle of the living room. Then she went to the telephone. She called Dr. Christian at the Eureka Hotel.

"Can you come, doctor? Don't ask me any questions and don't tell anybody where you're going." He said he'd be there in half an hour.

Mike had no clothing she could give Handsome. She got a light weight blanket. That would have to do for a bathrobe. She prepared her own bed for him. Shortly he came staggering out of the steam-filled bath room. She steadied him until he got into bed. He lay quiet, and then she brought him a glass of milk, held his head up while he drank it. He hardly seemed conscious of where he was.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY"

BY VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XXXI

"Handsome Regan Retired," Owner Crisp had put Handsome on the voluntary retired list. He had his ticket back to Charlotte, Michigan. Crisp made a short statement of regret that such action had been necessary. "We feel such a drastic measure will best serve the team and Regan."

So they'd kicked him out! Just when he was ready to behave himself. Mike dropped onto the davenport, covered her face with her hands. What would this do to him? Mike prepared their dinner. She dressed carefully in a simple white frock. Then she sat down to wait. He would come, or telephone. She tried to read. That was no good... at 10 o'clock when she was desperate, the telephone rang. It was Bob Kenyon.

"Oh, yes, I was sleeping when the phone rang." He must have noticed the disappointment in her voice.

"Do you want me to drop by before I go home?"

"You'd better not, tonight, Bob. I think I'd better go right to bed."

When Mike went back to the davenport she threw herself face down on it and wept. Was this the way she'd made Handsome feel when he had run off and married Iris? How could she treat Bob so? But it was really beyond her control.

Until she fell asleep at 2 o'clock, she was sure Handsome would come. When she awakened in the morning, still in her white dress, she got up wearily, bathed her hot face, put last night's dinner away.

Mike must keep up a front at the office. But Bob sensed something was wrong. She felt he knew. She could see by the hurt in his eyes that he understood her excuses. He drove her home before six and when she refused to let him come up, he went away without protest.

She did not think of Bob for long. She was waiting again for Handsome. At ten o'clock the door buzzer sounded. She jumped up, rushed to open it. Wish Malone walked into the room. He looked about for a moment, then he asked sharply:

"Where is he?"

"Handsome?"

"Yes, of course." Mike had never seen Malone like this before.

"I don't know..."

"Now look here, Mike. You know perfectly well, He was here night before last."

He dropped into a chair and she told him what had happened, and how she had waited for Handsome, last night. Wish had his hand over his face. He hadn't slept since Handsome disappeared.

"When Mr. Crisp gave him his railroad ticket, he left without a word. He cashed it in a saloon up around 49th Street about ten minutes later. He got full value for it. The bartender is a redhot fan."

"That's all the money he had?"

"Yes, Iris is selling the furniture. She's going to California, she says, and maybe to Honolulu. She says she hasn't heard from him and she doesn't want to."

"But the bills are still unpaid?"

Mike asked.

"Of course. What there is left, is in her name. I still can't see where the money went." They sat and looked at each other.

"He'll come to you eventually, I suppose," Wish said finally. "His father telephoned us a couple of times. I feel sorry for the old man. But Larry didn't send him any word. He just disappeared out of that bar... just as though the earth opened up."

That is the way matters stood in mid-July. New York had lost a great pitcher. The team was in second place. The fans raised a terrific hue-and-cry. But that did not alter the situation. The days dragged on. Mike had to keep up pretenses. She saw Bob Kenyon when he was so insistent that she did not have the courage to say no. At the office things appeared to be the same as always. When they were together, it was like old times. Except that Bob did not speak of their marriage any more. Mike was grateful that he spared her that.

In early September, Regan, Senior, came to town. Mike had dinner with him and he came back to her apartment to talk with her. He was trying to pay up Handsome's debts around the city. It was taking most of his ready cash.

"I'm afraid I spoiled him," the old man said. He'd aged years since his wife's death. "But he could always get around his mother and me."

The elderly man took a card from his pocket. It had come to him in July, not long after Handsome had disappeared. It was mailed from New York and read:

"Don't worry about me. I'm going to sea."

Mr. Regan shook his head. I'm hoping that is true. They've been through the hospitals, every place. And not a trace of him. How could he disappear on land? Every kid in the whole country would know him.

Before Mr. Regan left, he asked Mike for a promise. "If he should come to you or if you should hear from him, you'd let me know?" Mike promised, but she was losing hope.

In September, Bob Kenyon went west for a two weeks' business trip, and Mike learned just how much she had come to depend on him for happiness. He did not write her, nor telephone during the whole time.

There were memoranda which came into the office for her from him. Strictly business. That was all. Evidently Bob had decided he must learn to get along without her. Wish telephoned her now and then. They saw each other rarely. The meetings were always too painful.

Detroit won the pennant that year, and had to play it out with Chicago. The New York fans pointed out that they were just ten games out of first place. If Handsome Regan had been even in fair shape, their Yanks would have walked away with the pennant.

"He won't come back now. Not with the series on," Mike thought one morning as she sat up wearily in bed, saw the dark September sunshine. How different things had been a year ago for Handsome. For herself, too, for that matter.

Kenyon was back from his trip. Mike was so glad to see him that he was touched, and began to hope that maybe she would gradually forget Handsome. So, in honor of his home coming, Mike invited him down to the apartment for dinner. It was almost like old times. They laughed and talked, and he insisted on helping with the dishes.

QUINCY, Col.—Life for the 12 CCC boys of the Feather River Camp isn't the dreary thing some might imagine. In search of a man reported lost, they encountered a big bear that did all of his native tricks for them until they talked too loudly and he disappeared, sighted several deer, ran into a number of rattlesnakes and finally discovered that the missing man wasn't lost at all.
